Growing tomorrow's teachers at Heights today

The REPORTER

Hamilton Heights students interested in a career in education can get an up-close and personal look into the profession through Tomorrow's Teachers: Growing Our Own program at Indiana University Kokomo (IUK). This year marks Heights' third year to participate in this innovative program is designed to identify, encourage, and prepare individuals in their own community who are interested in becoming an educator or educational professional.

The program matches students interested in education with the resources to help them launch their career while still in high school. Courses can be utilized for dual-credit purposes and as part of a graduation pathway. IUK faculty bring the classes to Hamilton Heights giving juniors and seniors the chance to get a head start on college, explore teaching to see if it might be the right career choice for them, and learn skills that prepare them to be a successful college student.

Through the program, students enjoy a blended format that includes school-based field experiences as well as meetings at the high school. These are hands-on and intentionally sequenced in P-8 classrooms that are coordinated and supervised by district educators and integrated into IUK education courses. They will experience direct engagement activities on campus where they'll build community and network to gain a better understanding of the profession.

"This program gives them a chance to learn some of the intricacies about the field and opportunities to spend time in the classroom with students to see if this is a career they want

Heeling (healing) well?

If you're an empty nester, chances are you're of a certain age ... middle age. This stage of life requires you to be more thoughtful about your physical activity. I forgot this fact on Friday, July 12.

COLUMNIST

At the time, we were watching our friend Matt and Cindy's adorable Shih-Tzu, Tiny. While she is incredibly cute, Tiny is rarely energetic. She's normally what most of us would describe as a "cuddle bug." But that afternoon, Tiny had a rare case of the "zoomies."

If you're a dog owner, you know what I mean by the zoomies. She was racing around our house with pure glee, panting and wiggling her cute little self all over the place. I was delighted to see this and proceeded to chase her ... while stomping my feet on our hardwood floors ... without any shoes on.

I didn't think anything about this until I woke up the next morning with painful heels. I didn't see bruising and figured they'd get better eventually. I even went on three-mile walk the next week – and my left heel began protesting afterward.

I consulted Dr. Google, saw that bruised heelbones can take two to six weeks to improve, and didn't worry much more about it. Fast forward six weeks later ... the right heel was fine ... the left, not so much. I began walking more on the toes of my left foot, which of course got my body all out

Finally, I decided it was time to see my podiatrist, Dr. S. But I was so embarrassed. It's not like I could tell him and his staff. "Yes, I hurt my heel when I had this accident while doing (such-and-such brave/ awesome/amazing) activity."

When I visited Dr. S and his wonderful nurse last Tuesday, they did not burst into laughter and say, "Wow, that's the stupidest thing I've ever heard" as I had expected. They were kind and sympathetic. Dr. S is a fellow dog owner, and he told me he actually understood my behavior.

Thankfully, my heel isn't broken. He declared that I have some tissue damage and prescribed icing my heel throughout the day, ibuprofen, and always wearing my walking shoes with orthotics plus a heel cushion during the day.

I'm fortunate that I can still do most everyday tasks, although walking a 10K and working with horses at Agape in Cicero won't happen for a couple of weeks.

Two new murals in Noblesville celebrate conservation & native beauty

Submitted by SWCD

The Noblesville Township Trustee building has become the canvas for two murals, blending art and conservation in a celebration of Indiana's natural heritage.

These murals, painted by local artist Abigail Staffelbach, highlight the importance of native plants and the impact of invasive species on the environment. The murals were created via a partnership between the Hamilton County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) and Noblesville Township Trustee Theresa Caldwell.

The murals were made possible through the support of Hamilton County Tourism Inc.

The first mural invites viewers into Indiana's lush woodlands, where the Great White Trillium, Great Waterleaf, and

Classic cars coming to Cicero Red Bridge Park on Labor Day

Submitted

In 1991, the well-known Red Bridge Park Car Show began, and it has grown over the last 33 years to more than 200 cars participating annually.

Celebrate your Labor Day by attending this year's car show on Monday, Sept. 2.

The car show has been run by Cicero Friends of the Park, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, since 2013 and 100 percent of the proceeds from the event go right back into supporting the parks. The Cicero Friends of the Park committee provides the car show staff, food staff, and plays host to the vendor craft show.

Every year, the car show has wonderful sponsors to help offset costs (trophies, food, and door prizes) so the people of Cicero can enjoy this great event as well as others to the park. This year those sponsors are First Farmers Bank and Trust and Berrycom.

The Red Bridge Car Show is an "open" car show, which means that any car, truck, jeep, motorcycle, etc.

The first 150 participants who register will also receive a free dash plaque. The event is free for the public to come and browse the cars and the craft fair and enjoy breakfast or lunch or both – come out and support the Cicero community. The awards presentation is set for 2:30 p.m., unless weather requires event organizers to move up the time. Volunteers are always encouraged to help support this event. You can sign up to volunteer by going to tinyurl.com/CiceroCar-Show2024. Many local politicians have come out to help serve food and judge the cars.

The Cicero American Legion also participates annually by providing the presentation of the colors during the National Anthem at noon.

Cicero Friends of the Park hosts the Cicero Kids Go Fishing on the first Saturday in June every year, as well as concerts, a Jeep event with a free will donation Spaghetti Dinner for first responders (this year set for Sept. 15), and the Haunted Trail, which will be on Oct. 25 and 26 this year.

"We have long had opportunities for high school students to assist in classrooms in the role of a peer facilitator or cadet teacher, but tomorrow's Teacher program kicks it up a notch connecting high school students from other schools with similar career interests to work together and take college-level classes related to the field of education."

"We have several students who are interested in entering the education field, but they seldom have outside supporters," explained Hippensteel. "In fact, we have found that students are often discouraged from pursuing a career in education due to the pay scale, personal safety, and the lack of respect many receive. That's not necessarily an accurate portraval. The education field is filled with rich, diverse, and re-

On Saturday, Aug. 3 at approximately 5:30 p.m., Hamilton County Sheriff's Deputies Austin Rumer and Michael Firks were patrolling the blue parking lot at Ruoff Music Center when they were alerted to an unresponsive male. Upon finding him not breathing and without a pulse, Deputy Rumer administered Narcan, reviving the man. Seals Ambulance medics provided further aid, and he was transported to the hospital. This incident underscores the importance of quick action in lifethreatening situations and highlights the vital role that Narcan plays in reversing opioid overdoses. Thanks to the swift response from Deputies Rumer and Firks, a life was saved that day.

Fishers man convicted on 106 counts of invasion of privacy, obstruction of justice

By DAJA STOWE

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

A Fishers man was convicted after a jury deliberated for just two hours on 106 charges, including invasion of privacy and obstruction of justice.

Akeenen Anton Lamar Hunt was found guilty of 102 counts of invasion of privacy and four counts of obstruction of justice following a four-day trial on Friday, according to a news release from the Hancock County Sheriff's Office.

At the time of his arrest, Hunt was already being held at Hancock County Jail, waiting for trial on a range of serious charges. These included kidnapping, rape, invasion of privacy, leaving the scene of an accident, criminal recklessness, criminal confinement, and domestic battery - all related to crimes committed on Dec. 13.

Earlier in July, Hunt had been convicted on 15 charges and sentenced to 46 vears in prison.

A no-contact order was put in place against Hunt on Dec. 20 for the victim of the December assault. At the time, Hunt was out on bond for a previous domestic violence charge involving the same victim in Hamilton peatedly broke the no-contact orders from both Hamilton and Hancock counties by contacting the victim, even though he was explicitly forbidden from doing so by the court.

Records reveal that Hunt made 118 calls to the victim between Dec. 24 and Jan. 3. Out of these, he had verbal contact in 32 calls. In many of these conversations, he incriminated himself by discussing details of his Dec. 13 crimes. According to the release, he also tried to pressure the victim into changing her testimony and even offered to pay her rent and provide other benefits in exchange for her cooperation.

"I am immensely grateful to live and work in a community where public safety is a top priority," Chief Deputy Prosecutor Aimee Herring. "If a court of law tells you that you cannot do something, you do not unilaterally get to decide that you have the authority to do what you want. The amount of time that Ms. Stroh, Lieutenant Garner [of the Greenfield Police Department], Commander Foy, Sergeant Loewen [both of the Hancock County Jail], and I put into bringing this trial to a successful conclusion is a testament to the teamwork of

Golf carts & co-pilots teach kids about drugs

On Wednesday, Hamilton County Sheriff's Office SRO Deputies Neal and Ireland brought an important lesson to Hamilton Heights High School teacher Mr. Ballenger's health class, focusing on the real-life impact of drug and alcohol impairment. Through an interactive session using golf carts and safety co-pilots, students got a firsthand look at how these substances can drastically affect coordination, reaction time, and overall ability to function safely. The hands-on experience was both eye-opening and engaging, leaving a lasting impression. The hope is this knowledge will encourage students to think twice about the dangers of substance use and make responsible choices for their future. Thank you to Indiana Golf Car Rental for donating the golf carts for the students to use. (Photos provided by Hamilton County Sheriff's Office)

The Latvian Folk-Dance Ensemble, Lielupe from Jelgava, Latvia, was founded in 1959 as a seniors folkdance group. In its creative activity, under the leadership of Vilis Ozols, the ensemble focused itself on the middle generation. The directors' and dancers' knowledge and love of dancing, as well as their dedication to one another both during practice sessions and dance concerts, have allowed them to reach the highest level of Latvian folk-dancing professionalism and accomplishments.

Under her direction, the The 27th annual Carmel ensemble has received the highest accolades, not only in Latvia, but also in international dance competitions and has performed in the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Taiwan, Thailand, Brazil, China, Nepal, Indonesia, Iran, Turkey, and numerous European countries.

Lielupe has participated in all Latvian Song and Dance Festivals in Latvia since 1959. At their 65 Year Anniversary concert, "Love - Lielupe," 152 present and former dancers participated.

For the folk-dance ensemble, traditions are handed down from one generation to another, allowing them to maintain a remarkably elevated level of professionalism and cohesiveness where every dancer is genuinely appreciated. For Lielupe and its members, folk dancing is more than simply dancing, it's an opportunity to bring people together for the passion and love of dancing and for the combined life experiences it brings to each of them, both in Latvia and the around the world.

Ballet Folklorico Mosaicos from Indianapolis will also be featured at this year's festival. This nonprofit educational and charitable organization is dedicated to teaching, preserving and sharing the heritage of Mexican folkloric dance. They provide cultural education and enrichment to the people and communities in central Indiana. They have around 50 dancers ranging in age from 12 to 55 years. Mosaicos currently presents traditional dance groups representing the states of Nuevo Leon, Tamaulipas, Durango, Guerrero, Hidalgo, Oaxaca, Sinaloa, Jalisco, and Veracruz.

29th anniversary of a statewide celebration of archaeology in Indiana.

Throughout September, Hoosier history buffs can meet archaeologists and learn about the state's fascinating past. Through the prior years' celebrations, thousands of members of the public have been able to experience archaeology.

A variety of events for all ages will be offered by universities, museums, organizations, and individuals throughout Indiana, coordinated by the Indiana Department of Natural Resources Division of Historic Preservation & Archaeology (DHPA). A schedule is available at on.IN. gov/archaeologymonth.

"Archaeology tells us about the past, and Archaeology Month provides a perfect way for Hoosiers to learn about the science," said Dan Bortner, DNR director and State Historic Preservation Officer.

This year's commemorative poster focuses on the State Archaeological Survey. In the spring of 1920, the National Research Council Chairman of the Committee on State Archaeological Surveys traveled to 100th anniversary of the first Next month marks the Indianapolis with the intent published survey reports, of starting the systematic survey of all Indiana counties. Previously, recording Indiana's archaeological sites had occurred sporadically. Administration of the statewide survey fell to the State Department of Conservation (now known as the DNR), which then had a Division of Geology, and the Indiana Historical Commission. In that more methodical era, between the 1920s and the early 1960s, more than 20 of Indiana's counties were systematically surveyed, and the reports were published by the Indiana Historical Bureau.

> "Recognizing the looming threats to Indigenous and Euroamerican heritage from newly proposed highways, reservoirs, and other infrastructure projects, these early surveyors were on the road to preservation," said DH-PA's Amy Johnson, the state archaeologist. "We are proud that the DNR was there at the beginning of the State Archaeological Survey and that today, the DHPA continues to lead the statewide efforts for protecting and preserving Indiana's heritage."

McNally receives several Anderson Museum of Art unveils new benches in honor of dedicated volunteers

The REPORTER

The Anderson Museum of Art (AMOA) has announced the installation of two new benches at the museum's front walkway, generously donated by Tony and Laura Soverns. These benches are a stylish enhancement to the historic Carnegie Library building and a heartfelt tribute to the families who have been vital to the museum's history.

This donation honors the parents of Tony and Laura Soverns, Bob & Dorothy Soverns and Ed & Marge Evers, who were passionate advocates for the arts and dedicated museum volunteers. Laura Soverns noted, "Both my mother-in-law and father were devoted volunteers, and their spouses supported the center as well, so donating two benches made perfect sense."

The benches arrive as the museum completes Phase 1 of its Under One Roof campaign, focused on preserving AMOA's beloved building. This phase includes a new flat roof, limestone stair restoration, refinishing of exterior doors, and interior enhancements.

The AMOA Board of Directors and staff extend their deepest thanks to Tony and Laura Soverns for their generous contribution, which enhances the museum's welcoming atmosphere.

You can learn to spot investment fraud red flags

The REPORTER

Indiana Secretary of State Diego Morales is ready to launch a new consumer outreach and education initiative by the Indiana Securities Division to combat investment fraud.

The Secretary of State Securities Division's "Shielding the Community" program is designed to empower Hoosiers with knowledge to recognize red flags of investment fraud. The program is a collaborative effort between the Indiana Securities Division and local law enforcement agencies.

Secretary of

Securities

Morales

Commissioner brary Plaza

invite to the following 'Shielding the Community" presentations:

• Noblesville: 10 a.m. to noon

Sept. 3 at the Noblesville branch of the Hamilton

State Diego Morales and East Public Library, 1 Li-

• Zionsville: 10 a.m. to Hoosiers noon Sept. 16 at the Zionsville Town Hall, 1100 W. Oak St.

"My office continues to search for ways to engage and educate the public," Morales said. "Hard-working Hoosiers of all ages, the elderly in particular, are victims of fraudulent investment schemes all too often. Recognizing the warning signs is key to protecting yourself and loved ones. We continue to build strong partnerships with law enforcement agencies throughout the state. 'Shielding the Community' is an exciting partnership and opportunity to benefit Hoosiers."

The program will feature live, interactive community presentations with representatives from the Securities Division and local law enforcement agencies. Attendees will learn about common fraudulent schemes, how to recognize signs of fraud, and learn about law enforcement investigations and consumer protection resources.

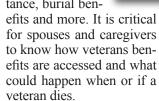

"If we can stop the fraud from happening in the first place, the bad actors are stopped before the harm is done," Castetter said. "A great deal of scams are initiated in other countries, which makes it very difficult to hold bad actors accountable and retrieve the money stolen from victims. Therefore, the best way to combat these scams is to ward it off before victims hand over their money."

For information on hosting a presentation in your community, please call the Indiana Securities Division at (317) 232-6681.

Veterans: relieve stress & inform your family about your VA benefits

PAUL LAWRENCE

More than six GUEST COLUMNIST million Americans receive earned benefits for military service - including disability compensation, education benefits, caregiver assistance, burial ben-

Consider this scenario. A veteran has not told his spouse much about his veteran's benefits. The veteran dies suddenly. His spouse grieves and plans a funeral, which she pays for out of pocket. The $2,500 taxfree payment from the VA for her husband's disability compensation has stopped being deposited into their bank account, which her spouse managed. Now she struggles to meet her expenses and is afraid she will have to sell their home.

Ultimately, she realizes she must connect with the VA to try to access survivor benefits. As she works her way through the bureaucracy, she struggles to understand what she may be eligible for and knows little about what her husband was receiving. This can be overwhelming during the best of times, but during this period of loss, it adds

Surviving spouses facing this situation are often approached by agents who offer to help them with VA benefits in return for payment. Faced with what feels like an insurmountable situation, some agree, even though paying for help is not necessary as many free resources are available to assist them.

Here are some tips to help veterans prevent these types of scenario from befalling their loved ones:

information in a binder, and/or in a special digital folder that you share with your family. He

Explain your current veterans benefits to your family.

Schedule a day and time to talk one-on-one with your family about the benefits you receive. Get out your binder and digital files and explain to them how the information is organized. Help them understand the situation as it is today.

· Discuss what happens to these benefits after you die and what additional benefits the family may receive. Disability compensation payments stop after a veteran dies. Additional survivor and burial benefits may be available after a veteran's passing. You can learn more by checking online at VA.gov or with a veterans service officer (VSO).

 Plan ahead for possible financial shortfalls. Even if a survivor benefit is awarded to a widow or widower by the VA, the payment for this benefit will typically be lower than the disability compensation the veteran received while alive. One way to address this income shortfall before the veteran dies is to purchase life insurance that will provide additional income for the spouse.

· Give your family contact information for your VSO. Ideally, your spouse should be introduced to the VSO, so the spouse knows who can assist with applying for survivor and burial benefits after the veteran dies.

While these conversations can be tough for many, they can better inform and relieve stress for our families in the future. You want for the people • Organize veterans you love to be taken care nefits paperwork and of after you are gone, so do not delay having these conversations.

Timothy Forrest "Tim" Coffey December 20, 1964 - August 1, 2024

Timothy Forrest "Tim" Coffey, 59, Fishers, passed away on Thursday evening. August 1. 2024, at IU Health University Hospital in Indianapolis. Born December 20, 1964, in Columbus, Ind., he was the son of the late Charles and Mildred (Ferguson) Coffey.

He was a 1983 graduate of Westfield High School.

For 18 years, Tim worked as a heavy equipment operator for the City of Carmel. Working for the city was so much more than just a job to Tim. When anyone else would roll their eyes and sigh at the mention of snow in Hamilton County, Tim had the opposite reaction. It was time to do one of his favorite things at work: hop in a plow truck. And as the cold Indiana winters turned to spring and summer, so began Tim's second favorite activity: firing up the street sweeper. Tim took great pride in the way he was able to help the city look her best. He also enjoyed helping out with many of the special events that were held each year, including the annual Kris Kringle event.

Tim was a member of the Sons of the American Legion, Lowell Beaver Post #470 in Fishers. He loved playing poker, but he enjoyed occasions when he dealt poker at the Legion even more.

When Tim found himself with some free time, it was usually reserved for hunting and fishing, or settling down with a good John Wayne movie.

Tim is survived by his wife, Kellie Sue (Jones) Coffey. She and Tim were married in 2000. Also surviving are his sons, Jeremy Coffey (Erica) of Indianapolis, and Zach Coffey of Indianapolis; stepson, Ezra Clemons of Indianapolis; stepdaughter, Tyra Clemons of Indianapolis; several siblings; and many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Charles and Mildred (Ferguson) Coffey.

A celebration of life will be held from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 31, 2024, at the Fishers American Legion Post #470, 9091 E. 126th St., Fishers.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be presented to the Fishers American Legion Post #470.

Arrangements have been entrusted to Kercheval Funeral Home in Sheridan. Condolences: kerchevalfuneralhome.com.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

THE PLAGUE OF THE FIRSTBORN

Now the Lord had said to Moses, "I will bring one more plague on Pharaoh and on Egypt. After that, he will let you go from here, and when he does, he will drive you out completely. Tell the people that men and women alike are to ask their neighbors for articles of silver and gold." (The Lord made the Egyptians favorably disposed toward the people, and Moses himself was highly regarded in Egypt by Pharaoh's officials and by the people.)

So Moses said, "This is what the Lord says: 'About midnight I will go throughout Egypt. Every firstborn son in Egypt will die, from the firstborn son of Pharaoh, who sits on the throne, to the firstborn son of the female slave, who is at her hand mill, and all the firstborn of the cattle as well. There will be loud wailing throughout Egypt—worse than there has ever been or ever will be again. But among the Israelites not a dog will bark at any person or animal.' Then you will know that the Lord makes a distinction between Egypt and Israel. All these officials of yours will come to me, bowing down before me and saying, 'Go, you and all the people who follow you!' After that I will leave." Then Moses, hot with anger, left Pharaoh.

The Lord had said to Moses, "Pharaoh will refuse to listen to you—so that my wonders may be multiplied in Egypt." Moses and Aaron performed all these wonders before Pharaoh, but the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let the Israelites go out of his country.

turns to the 2.5-mile oval at Indianapolis Motor Speedway on July 26-27, 2025.

The Brickyard Weekend race lineup will include the NASCAR Xfinity Series Pennzoil 250 on Saturday, July 26 and the NASCAR Cup Series Brickyard 400 presented by PPG on Sunday, July 27.

July 27 is an iconic date in Brickyard history. On that date in 2014, Jeff Gordon earned his record-setting fifth Brickyard 400 victory.

yard on the oval this year was much anticipated by fans and drivers alike, and the overtime win by Kyle Larson did not disappoint," IMS President J. Douglas Boles said. "Tradition and history are a huge part of Brickyard Weekend, and a very noteworthy win by Jeff Gordon occurred on this date. Only time will tell who will add their names to the history books in 2025."

Brickyard Weekend returned to the oval in 2024 as NASCAR celebrated 30 years at the Racing Capital of the World. The inaugural Brickyard 400 took place Aug. 6, 1994, with racing

Earlier this year, PPG announced a multiyear agreement to extend its presenting sponsorship of the Brickyard 400, a crown jewel of the NASCAR Cup Series schedule, and unveiled the 2025 event logo.
