

11 elite Five Star Veterans honored in quilt presentation

By AMY ADAMS
news@readthereporter.com

Over the past two weeks, 11 veterans who live at Five Star Residences of Noblesville were awarded Quilts of Valor for their service to the United States during the Korean War or the Korean War era.

On Wednesday, Aug. 28, the following veterans were presented quilts: Mym Anderson, U.S. Navy; Glen Beaver, U.S. Army; Ross Callahan, U.S. Army; Boone Clark, U.S. Army; and Jim Gilster, U.S. Army.

On Wednesday, Sept. 4, six more veterans were presented quilts: Jim Boe, U.S. Navy; Don Hardesty, U.S. Army; Ron Jones, U.S. Navy; Don Owens, U.S. Air Force; Ed Pursell, U.S. Navy; and Jim Ricker, U.S. Navy.

"These men served with honor, performed their duty, and helped to ensure the freedom we have today," said Dolores McNabb.

McNabb not only served as emcee for the ceremonies, she also pieced all the quilts.

The Quilts of Valor Foundation is a grassroots organization of quilters from across the nation begun in 2003 by quilter Catherine Roberts while her son was deployed to Iraq. Since then, nearly 400,000 Quilts of Valor have been awarded in the U.S., Germany, Iraq, and Afghanistan.

"This quilt brings you a three-part message from our hearts: honor, freedom, and comfort," Rick Herring, son-in-law of awardee Jim Ricker, said as part of the ceremony on Sept. 4.

Donna Mazanowski, daughter of awardee Don Hardesty, shared at that same ceremony that Roberts describes the quilts as the civilian equivalent of the Purple Heart, as they are "awarded" and not just handed out.

"The Quilt of Valor says 'thank you' for your service, sacrifice, and valor in serving our nation," Mazanowski said.

As friends and family members helped present each quilt, they first revealed the front of each red, white, and blue quilt to the awardee and then to the audience. Each beautiful quilt garnered "oohs" and "ahhs" from the crowd.

"Each stitch that holds the layers together represents love, gratitude, and sometimes the tears of the maker," Mazanowski said.

To meander & ponder . . .

Meander: to wander aimlessly, without an urgent destination.

Ponder: to think quietly, deeply and soberly.

I embrace both.

This past week, I turned one year shy of being in my 70s. I turned the page to 69.

How did I get here so fast? It seems just yesterday I was 49.

On my birthday, I took a drive. There is something about September that beckons me to drive through the countryside. What is green now will soon change to the glorious colors of autumn. Hello fall!

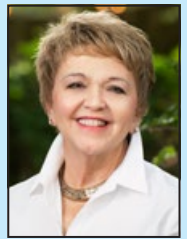

It's on those backroads where I ponder about life and how I handle its challenges. So much of life is about what I choose to embrace. I am very cautious about where I allow my mind to dwell. Don't get me started about where I allow my heart to dwell. Lessons learned.

1. I embrace the moment and enjoy today for the simple things. I meander around an antique store and wonder about all the stories the antiques have to tell. I share a cup of coffee with a friend and let it get cold while we laugh at being goofy. The older I get, the more acceptable it is to be goofy.

2. Slowing down, realizing I don't have to be productive to make the day matter. Sometimes, I stop while on my walk and sit on one of the benches in my downtown. I love to people-watch. As a child, when I was bored, my mother would drive

Union Bible College opens its doors & welcomes crowd

By AMY ADAMS
news@readthereporter.com

Tuesday evening, Aug. 27, Union Bible College and Academy opened its doors to members of the Westfield Washington Historical Society and the community at large.

"We didn't anticipate this large of a crowd," said Philip Hoard, vice-president of institutional advancement.

Approximately 70 guests ranged from those who said they have lived in Westfield for their entire lives but had never been inside any of the Union buildings to those whose entire families attended and graduated from Union Bible Seminary.

Union leaders welcomed attendees into the chapel for a presentation of the history of the school by Union Librarian Shannon Buckler, daughter-in-law of Union President Adam Buckler.

The younger Buckler told of the committee that raised $2,000 to build a two-story brick building to house Union High School which opened Jan. 7, 1861, with 65 students.

By 1885, the Friends' grade school had joined Union High School to become Union High Academy. Having quadrupled in students, leaders decided to build an addition to the front portion of the building creating the main structure that exists today.

In 1911, Union High Academy had only 11 students and was $1,100 in debt. The school closed, but only briefly.

McNabb knows that this is true, having somewhat reluctantly admitted to piecing more than 300 of the quilts herself as part of her connection to the Valor Quilters of Olney, Ill. Since its formation in 2015, this group of quilters has sewn more than 750 quilts for those touched by war.

"I certainly don't feel worthy to receive this quilt," Rickman said. "It's a privilege to be here. Thank you, Dolores, for all you've done in making these quilts."

McNabb hopes to have quilts ready to donate to Vietnam veterans in time for Veterans Day but that can't happen without donations.

downtown, and we would sit in front of J.C. Penney or G.C. Murphy and watch the people. It was always a cure for my boredom. Now, it's a respite from a frazzled day.

3. I am realizing the joy of meandering. It's not about reaching a destination but enjoying the trip to get there. I stop at places I never planned to visit, talk to people I never planned to meet, and carry on conversations that recharge my soul. Oh, and there's the food I find at a cute, out-of-the-way place. Who doesn't love an out-of-the-way café?

4. I am embracing the wonder of nature. I pull over to catch the sunset and breathe a prayer of gratitude. My prayers are not laced with eloquent spiritual words but that of ... God, You sure have painted a beautiful sunset with Your paintbrush. Thank You. I then take a deep breath and release the tension of the day.

5. I have found the healing balm of pondering in a quiet place. If asked what I am doing, I reply ... nothing. My mother would sit on her front porch and ponder. She said when I got older, I would understand. She was right. Pondering allows my mind, body, and soul to rest.

6. I value conversations. I lean in and listen. I'm not thinking about what I am going to say next. I listen not only with my ears but also with my heart. I realize that people don't always need to be "fixed" but need someone to listen to them. This is hard for a "fixer."

7. I capture a moment and write about it in my journal. I won't always remember tomorrow what I thought was important today, so I write it down. Someday, my family will read my journals and maybe learn from my thoughts. My mother did just that. She is still teaching me in her writings.

8. I am letting it go! What am I letting go of? I'll go ahead and get my list. No, I'll save it for another column ... or two. I'm a work in progress in what I choose to let get to me ... or who to let get to me. I guess you could say I am getting better at picking my poison. (Insert laugh.)

9. And about those battles I choose to engage in - I have learned to choose wisely. Some battles are not for me. Just because I choose not to argue my point or side of the story does not mean the other person wins. Could you read that again? An argument takes two people. The loudest and the last to speak does not mean they win and I lose. I have fewer breaths to take in my life, and I'm not wasting any of them on petty stuff. If they think they win ... so be it. I will not allow them to rob me of my peace. (That might be a work in progress.)

10. Love well. I love people in the best ways I know how.

Where do you ponder? Where is your favorite place to meander? Please take my advice and learn to ponder and meander. You will find my mother was right - they are good for the body, mind, and soul.

(TOP LEFT) UBCA Librarian Shannon Buckler speaks to the crowd gathered in the chapel. (TOP RIGHT) When Union Bible College and Academy painted the main building white, it apparently covered up still faintly visible slurs from the time period of World War I when students and staff made the unpopular choice not to participate in war efforts. (ABOVE LEFT) Becky Personett, who went to Union Bible Seminary from 1970 to 75 and taught for a couple of years, and Ruth Dollens, the oldest of 14 children who all went to Union Bible Seminary, were delighted to tour the updated facility after having recently moved back to Indiana. (ABOVE RIGHT) Judi Shuck sits at the lower opening of the fire escape slide.

"It was decided that a school was needed for a higher purpose to train ministers and missionaries," Buckler said.

Union Bible Seminary opened in September 1911 under the direction of William M. Smith.

In the late 1980s, the school changed its name to the current Union Bible College and Academy to better reflect its K-12 school and four-year college offering degrees in such areas of study as business, education, ministry, music, and leadership.

"Whether or not students came as a Christian or left as a Christian, they left with a good education," Buckler said.

UBCA staff, students, and alumni celebrate the school's heritage as being co-ed from the beginning, a multicultural, multi-ethnic institution that is the oldest high school still operating in the state of Indiana. At least one tunnel, possibly more, accessible through at least the 1960s, indicates that UBCA was most likely a stop on the Underground Railroad, and it is rumored that Abraham Lincoln may have even given a speech from the steps.

Dr. Adam Buckler said the academy currently has 75 to 80 students in kindergarten to 12th grades and 230 students enrolled in the college, with around 100 attending classes on campus and 50 living in campus dorms. Around 50 faculty and staff members work for 20 to 30 percent less than what they would make in a secular university, according to Dr. Buckler.

"They work for the mission, not the money," Dr. Buckler said. "They're here because they want to make an impact, an internal and eternal impact."

Following the presentation, Hoard and Public Relations Director Clayton Plemons led two groups on tours throughout the academy and college classrooms and around the grounds, which covers most of the block bordered by Roosevelt Street, South Cherry Street, East South Street, and South Union Street. The school also gave away copies of Union Bible College and Academy: A Heritage to Remember, A Heritage to Keep published in 2011 for the 100th anniversary of Union Bible College and the 150th anniversary of Union Bible Academy.

The school is in the process of building a new cafeteria, the first in more than 100 years, and is seeking donations for its completion. Future plans also include renovating the Estes House, which has served as the president's home and a dormitory in the past but is now used for storage.

Dr. Buckler invited guests and the public to the UBCA annual fall festival on Saturday, Oct. 5, from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. There will be a huge tent along Roosevelt Street with food, music, live auctions, pony rides, bounce houses, and more. Dr. Buckler said the event usually draws around 700 people each year.

"It's a privilege to serve you even if you don't realize we're doing it," Dr. Buckler said.

Last weekend was the Penrod Arts Fair at Newfields, 4000 N. Michigan Road, Indianapolis, which you can read about at tinyurl.com/ycckur8. Among the artists being featured there, Joanie Drizin and her son Josh Drizin from Girly Steel Studio in Noblesville were present, as they have been for many years.

"We've been making metal sculpture for the landscape for the last 25 years," Joanie told The Reporter. "Basically we create art out of steel and rebar and construction material to accent

35 artists represented in Fishers Arts Council's Juried Exhibit

The REPORTER

Fishers Arts Council (FAC) and Jiffy Lube of Indiana invite you to see the incredible talent Hamilton County has to offer at the fifth annual Juried Exhibit of Hamilton County Artists. A total of 35 artists are represented in this exhibit at the Art Gallery at City Hall, located in the Fishers Municipal Center, 1 Municipal Drive.

Artists hail from Fishers, Noblesville, Carmel, Westfield, Cicero, and right along the edges of Hamilton County in Indianapolis and McCordsville, showcasing a wide range of painted mediums. Awards will be given for Best Landscape, Portrait or Figurative, Abstract, and Floral or Other, along with Best in Show which wins a $1,000 cash prize and a solo exhibit in the gallery in January 2025. These awards are made possible by sponsors, including new supporters Wasson Nursery for the Best Landscape award and Noblesville Creates for the Best Portrait or Figurative award.

The winners have been decided by Dan Annarino of West Lafayette. He received MA from Purdue University. He has taught at Purdue, worked commercially as a graphic designer for print and video production, and later as a graphic designer for Purdue. He continues working as a full-time artist, maintains a studio in Lafayette, and exhibits his paintings throughout the Midwest. He is also a board member and past president of the Indiana Artists' Club, and a member of the Hoosier Art Salon and the Art Museum of Greater Lafayette, as well as an exhibiting artist in many shows throughout the Midwest.

When Annarino is asked to judge a show, he has criteria that he believes in and follows.

"The usual standards apply," he said. "My number one criterion is creativity — pushing the boundaries and taking chances. And, of course, the usual elements: originality, use of media, technique, composition, mood, presentation. That said, it's a judgment call and can be tricky digitally choosing a show."

However, the choosing of prize-winning art pieces in the Juried Show are always done in person.

Some favorites of mine include Jones' "Folsom Prison Blues," Craven's "Who Do You Love?," Henry's "Great Balls of Fire," Plourde's "Long Tall Sally," and Ms. Embree's sultry "Fever." An encore section provides an exciting finish to the show, ending with a rousing "Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On." Note: be ready to get up and move those feet!

The show is a catalogue of '50s rock music, performed by a highly skilled cast of musicians and vocalists. Cody Craven (Perkins), Sam C. Jones (Cash), Brian Michael Henry (Lewis), and Jesse Plourde (Presley) combine talents, along with Justin Bendel (as bassist Brother Jay) and Michael McCoy Reilly (as drummer Fluke), to fashion a sometimes blazing, sometimes sedate array of performances. Hannah Embree adds a fine portrayal as Presley's girlfriend Dyanne to the mix, while Eddie Curry is a stand-out as recording pioneer Phillips.

Jeff Stockberger directs the energetic festivities with deft support by Daniel Hesselbrock's sound design and Kathy Henry's colorful costuming. Ryan Koharchik designed the lighting, and I wish to give a special shoutout to stage manager Kevin Casey, whose precise lightboard operation makes the visual impact of the show come shining through.

but I was also trying out a couple metal pieces and they sold right away. I just decided that was the time to make the switch. I really like working with power tools and fire, so once I made that switch it just steamrolled."

Josh has been involved with the business side of Girly Steel full time for about 10 years.

"I know at first we had only ever gone to Penrod and visited," Josh said. "It's just such a great show that Joanie just wanted to be in it. She was on the waitlist for it the very first year and convinced them to let her in and we've been back ever since then. It was a big process of getting in that first year and showing just how popular we were."

According to both Joanie and Josh, they approach steel art from a garden decoration perspective.

They noted that during and after the pandemic, gardens have become more important to people.

"Everyone during that time spent so much time out in the garden or out in their yards that now everyone has pictures of their gardens, where they didn't used to have that," Josh said. "I think having spent so much time in the garden, they see the decorations and wonder what else they could do with it. It's really become kind of a safe hangout for a lot of people."

Josh said he has seen customers come back year after year to buy one or a few pieces at a time to grow their sculpture collection as they grow their gardens.

"I know we've had some customers who've been buying stuff for 25 years actually, and they come to the shows and they tell us every single piece that they've ever bought," Josh said. "I was sitting there thinking, 'Wow. I probably made that piece, but I just do not remember it.' You make so much stuff and sometimes we do have one-offs where I just never got around to making another one, or maybe somebody bought it before I could make another one, and then I forgot about it. That does occasionally happen."

Nostalgiaholic

I love going to the movies. Anyone else? It is an instant dopamine boost. It is dim, comfortable, I am warm, wrapped up in a few layers, and eating a favorite movie snack. What could be better?!

I often find myself in that moment wishing I could stay there forever. Wouldn't life be so much easier if we could stay in our perfect movie scene and never leave?

Or, how about when your mind wanders to a beautiful memory of the past and you are so close to that memory that you can hear it, feel it. I love that. I think to myself, I just want to stay here forever and not face some of my realities. I admit, I am addicted to nostalgia.

My boys are so grown up. I have one a junior in college and my baby boy is a senior in high school. Just the thought of him leaving brings immediate tears to my eyes. My goodness, time is truly a thief. There is nothing within our humanly power to stop it. Most of us moms would love just one more day with our littles. Now that our kids are growing up, we realize those younger years were times to truly cherish. Hard to grasp that when you are in the middle of the chaos.

As I watched my college boy drive away a few weeks ago, I just stood still and watched him go, until I could no longer see his car. I had already apologized for the tears as he wrapped me in his grown boy arms for one last goodbye hug before he left. I wanted to keep him there, safe forever. (Those adult kid hugs are not so bad!) I felt foolish for having told myself, "I won't cry this year."

I often think to myself, these are the good days with my disease. "Remember these times," I tell myself. I replay my recent visit with my neurologist when he explained to me that with weakness like mine, along with my disease, the little strength left in my legs could take a sudden downturn at any time. I sat frozen in fear as he said those words, slightly regretting the choice to go alone to that visit. But also, grateful none of my loved ones was there to see my breakdown once I reached the safe space of my car. It felt right to handle that one alone, initially. Now, every day I am even more grateful to be standing as much as I can and walking.

I just want to stay in this "movie moment" where things are ok. My loved ones are safe, I am still on my own two feet a

Bits of wisdom

Mom had some favorite "Dad" jokes.

My friend, a retired minister, asked, "Do you know what a cow that just had a calf is?"

I've lived on a farm only 47 years, so of course, I didn't know. Well, now I do. He said it's a "decalfinated" cow. A zoology teacher was standing near. He chuckled and said, "I'll have to tell that to my class."

That gave me a chance to show my knowledge. Just a week or so earlier, another friend, a retired schoolteacher, had asked this question: "Why is one arm of the 'V' of Canadian geese form as they fly north, longer than the other?" I like birds, but since we are not on really intimate terms, I exposed my ignorance. Would you believe the zoology teacher didn't know either?

My friend had explained it to me so I shared the secret: It's because there are more birds on one side. You should have heard that teacher laugh! "I've got to tell that to one of my class, too. Where's a pencil and paper?"

And that's how kids now-a-days get their smarts.

As you get older, you discover that a lot of your friends are retired. One of my friends is a retired – no, I think graduated is a better word – homemaker. What that means is she is now smart enough to raise her grandkids.

Last week she had a call from her niece. "Auntie, something's wrong with me, I can't think right, my speech is slurred, I can't even walk straight."

After a few comments like that, my friend asked, "Are you on tranquilizers?"

Goodness, would you know the answer to that if someone asked you? The niece didn't know. Her reply was, "I don't know. I just take this stuff the doctor prescribed, but, Auntie, why do you think that might be it?"

Are you thinking my friend had a child or grandchild that had been messing in drugs? Or maybe had had some herself? That was not the case.

She learned when her mother – that's right, a great-grandmother – was so tranquilized she couldn't be quite accountable. Why would great-grandma do that? It turned out she was just taking "that stuff" the doctor had prescribed and he had allowed too many refills of the prescription. All that reminds us that kids aren't the only ones who have problems. They can pop up anywhere anytime and often where unexpected faces.

Rock the boat & start a new hobby

One piece of advice I've heard about the empty nester stage of life is that it's helpful to adopt a new hobby. Trying something different takes your mind off your worries as your children begin adulthood and helps you miss them a little less.

Last year, my husband John suggested getting our own kayaks so we could explore the many waterways of central Indiana and beyond. I loved this idea, but we bought our used ones a little late in the season to try them out.

When the spring of 2024 arrived, my father-in-law, Ron, was in hospice. When he passed last April, I knew we had many weekends ahead of us where we'd be out of town.

We had Ron's celebration of life in June followed by multiple work sessions to get his house and property ready to be put on the market. We worked with John's brother, his wife, and other family members and friends and we now have an accepted offer!

So, to me, our summer – and subsequent kayaking – really began in August. John and I did our research and decided to start with the canoe launch on Morse Reservoir at Red Bridge Park in Cicero. Great choice! The launch was close to the parking lot and made it easy to get in and out of the water.

We traveled northwest that afternoon and had a delightful time seeing the wildlife all around us.

Buoyed by this success (pun intended), we figured we'd try kayaking on the White River over Labor Day weekend. This was ... not so easy. In fact, my brain hurt trying to plan what steps to take to efficiently park one vehicle at the start and one at the end without a ton of "back and forth." Thankfully John easily figured it all out.

And, we had an angel from White River Canoe Company direct us to a great starting point last Sunday – Riverwood Canoe Landing. We never got the bus driver's name but appreciate her knowledge and kindness!

Despite the heavy rains Friday night through Saturday morning, the river was quite low. We often got stuck on the rocks at various points throughout the trip. Poor John got stopped more than I did – he is, after all, a man and weighs more than me.

While we did have some fun and laughs, this experience taught us that it might be better to try the river next spring after some good rains.

I'm sure we'll get in a couple more trips before it gets too cold this fall ... my more experienced friend Heather sent me a great list of other possibilities on central Indiana lakes that we'll try out.

We love this new hobby. It gives us terrific exercise and gets us out in nature – two incredible mood boosters.

If you're struggling as an empty nester, I encourage you to explore something new and be open to both the fun and the challenges. You may hit some "rocks" along the way, but you'll learn a lot and experience so much joy.

His pineapple shirt was a hit with the swingers

Last year, in anticipation of a much-needed escape to the Caribbean, Brynne surprised me with a few "fun" shirts to populate my wardrobe for the tropics.

My favorite was a Hawaiian-like button-down shirt patterned with colorful pineapples – upside-down ones, right-side up ones, some with eyeballs, some wearing reading glasses, others donning sunglasses.

It earned a surprising amount of favorable comments.

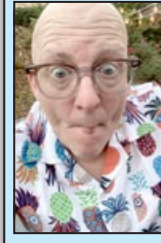

Originally, I thought my pineapple print shirt's popularity was due to the carefree fun it conveyed. The more people who favorably commented on it, the more that I began to feel like I had become the most interesting man on the island – despite a lifelong trail of evidence to the contrary. Several years ago, my immediate boss at that time actually nodded off during my annual performance review. I've never felt less significant.

I do like it when people compliment my shirts, especially T-shirts decorated with slogans and images that define my interests. It's a way to meet new people with similar curiosities.

Recently, I ordered a T-shirt advertising one of my favorite bands from the '70s, WAR. On the shirt's front is their iconic album cover for Why Can't We Be Friends? You know ... the one with the big gold-toothed grin. The one on my T-shirt included a marijuana cigarette dangling from the traditional smile. For the record, I've never smoked pot. But I love WAR. I find peace with WAR. Besides, it's illegal in Indiana. Pot, not WAR. I'm a law and order type of guy. Should a "Hoosier high" ever become legal, who knows ... maybe I'll find peace in pot while listening to WAR.

Unfortunately, as much as I

love to wear my WAR T-shirt, it hasn't gotten anywhere near the response that my pineapple shirt received in St. Croix.

"Nice shirt," I was told by a fellow vacationer.

"Love the shirt, man," I was told by a waitress.

"My wife got it for me," I responded each time the shirt got a compliment. I didn't want to take credit from where credit was due. Brynne had surprised me with it. I'm sure there were plenty of crazy shirts to choose from on Temu. Apparently, she really wanted her man decked out in pineapples down on Fantasy Island.

"Wow, really? Your wife bought it?" the strangers responded, seeming even more interested knowing my wife had surprised me with it.

I interpreted their amazement to mean: What a fun couple!

We ARE a fun couple!

A couple from Georgia joined us for brunch after one of them, also in pineapple attire, noticed my festive shirt. We were like twins. That we both wore pineapples in public seemed so funny that my new pineapple compadre and I posed for a photo.

I posted a few Facebook photos of me in my pineapple shirt – one with me and the other woman. It generated several likes. It felt good to be validated for wearing a shirt picked out for me by my wife. One FACEBOOK friend commented: "LOL. You do know what a pineapple means?"

I'm a fun guy, that's what it means, I thought. My wife and I are a fun couple!

Some FACEBOOK friends selected the "Haha" emoji in response to the "You do know what a pineapple means?" comment, which made me a bit uneasy, the way an outlier feels in the face of an inside joke – especially if the inside joke could be at his expense.

A quick Google search taught me more than I wanted to know about pineapples: "Pineapples are used as a secret symbol for swingers to identify each other. A pineapple badge, piece of clothing or stuck on someone's door can mean they are looking for a partner swap or using it as an invitation to a swinger party."

Swingers!

Was that why total strangers had been going out of their way to compliment my shirt?! Were they actually swingers who thought Brynne and I were swingers? Did we accidentally land on Swinger Island? I'd heard there are cruise ships for that – but a whole damned island!!!!

Steve Miller Band's "Swingtown" immediately came to mind: "Come on and dance, come on and dance; we may not get another chance; you know the night is falling; and the music's calling; and we've got to get down to Swingtown ..."

Suddenly, I felt like the de facto mayor of Swingtown!

I don't swing. I've never swung. I don't have swinger hips. I'm not sure it's legal to swing in Indiana – though I hear Happy Hour is back. If invited to a neighborhood key party, I'd simply Uber there just to avoid the awkwardness of blindly fishing for someone else's key-chain from a fish bowl of sin.

My pineapple shirt suddenly lost any semblance to tropical island innocence. I decided that I better delete my Facebook post before someone – my daughter, for example – actually made some wiseass comment like, "Sleazy in the Islands."

I looked up from Facebook and eyed Brynne, who was lounging on a hotel beach chair.

"About this pineapple shirt you bought me ... well ... it's apparently quite popular down here."

"Well, it's definitely you," she said.

"Yea, but not really."

"Huh?"

"Honey," I said. "About this shirt you picked out for me ... are you trying to tell me something?"

Respecting those in need

Over the two-plus decades of doing food charity work, we have had the opportunity to meet many neighbors in need. Generally, as a rule, when we meet someone at a pantry, we give them space and let people go about their business. We do not engage approached her vehicle. Walking up from behind the car the woman proceeded to lecture the shopper on pantry etiquette. "You're taking more than six items, that's against the rules," she said as she took out her phone and began filming. I'll spare everyone the next several minutes where the interaction reverted to what can best be described as a fifth-grade playground "nanny nanny boo boo" and tattling session.

Everyone the next several minutes where the interaction reverted to what can best be described as a fifth-grade playground "nanny nanny boo boo" and tattling session.

Regardless of how the neighbor is feeling, our response is the same: empathy, listen, and show respect.

Many of our neighbors who shop from a Feeding Team pantry are not used to taking help from someone else. They are hesitant and cautious; the last thing that they need to experience is disrespect, shame, or embarrassment.

This month, I received a troubling social media message from a neighbor asking me to call her to talk about her recent pantry experience. When we spoke on the phone, this young lady told me her story.

She was shopping at an area pantry on behalf of an unemployed friend with no transportation. As she was taking items to her SUV another woman

We absolutely appreciate each person who contributes to, sorts, cleans, supports, and pays attention to the pantries. Yes, it is disappointing when people take more than they should, and yes, it happens more than we would like. However, disrespecting those in need – or, in this case, a neighbor shopping to help someone else – doesn't represent what Feeding Team stands for. The right answer never includes disrespect. Most shoppers respect the model and just take what they need.

Feeding Team has always been aware that our model for feeding hungry neighbors is susceptible to abuse. We take the position that when that happens it's between them and God. If we interact with neighbors in these situations, our response is always to respectfully ask them to keep their selections to six items and refer the shopper to food pantries that are better equipped to accommodate larger needs. Hunger in our county is real; respect in serving those in need is our approach, every time!

People are not entitled to receive the Feeding Team's help; we give it freely to the best of our ability. Further, we encourage as much grace as possible as a response to situations. That is the takeaway, and that is the lesson from this month's situation.

Feeding Team provides a way and a place for those in need to get food for their family. While each pantry really is just a big wooden yellow box, it means so much more for donors and for families in need. You are welcome to join us as together we fight to eliminate hunger in our area cities.

The pantries exist to meet the food insecurity needs of gap families, neighbors who may not qualify for public assistance and could use a few meals before payday. The pantries serve as many food-challenged neighbors as possible, and our hearts

Time, slow down

Anyone who is a parent knows the concept of longing for time to slow down. The old saying is so true that the days are long, and the years are short.

Sometimes it's so easy to get in the weeds with the daily grind and then you look at one of your children and notice they don't seem as little as they once were. Even though they are completely reliant on you for their overall well-being and every need, they somehow are just a little older and those photos you look at while scrolling your phone become easy to notice their many physical changes.

My children are both at exciting milestones with their academic careers right now. My son is beginning preschool, and my daughter is ready to take on kindergarten. Their classrooms are next door to one another, and my classroom will be just down the hall. Pat picked out a Buzz Lightyear and Woody backpack, and Mary chose a Disney princess backpack with matching lunch boxes, compliments of Grandma. They are both so excited and ready to embrace their school year. My daughter cannot wait to wear her uniform jumper, which she has now calls her "kindergarten dress."

I pray this year is one that helps them grow and blossom. I hope they not only make friends, but also, I hope they choose to be good friends to others. I hope that when they pass each other in the hall that they try to sneak in a quick hug. I hope the excitement they both feel when they see me as a staff member in the hall does not subside. I hope they come home with new stories and an excitement for learning.

I hope they know that even though my classroom is right down the hall, and I am so excited to have them with me every day, that a little part of my heart will be broken just knowing that they are not as little as they once were.

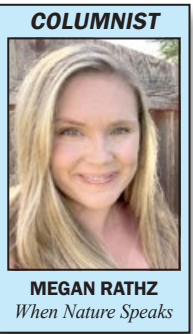

I know how pivotal these young years are in school because they will determine the attitude my children have for school. I hope that they both have a love of learning, develop pride in their school, grow in their faith, and share an excitement to be part of a community that I have loved for many years.

I know I will not always be right down the hall from my kids. I know I cannot always fight their battles. For now, I will walk the delicate balance of mom and teacher, knowing that I am so glad I can keep an extra eye on them and make sure they are OK. There will be a time when I cannot be a few doors down from them. For now, I will relish it.

Everyone with older kids will tell you that it goes by quickly. I know this is so true and that is why sometimes I wish I could hit pause and let them be this little forever. I want them to be sheltered from this world in their innocent bubbles before life grabs them. I know that while my kids are headed to preschool and kindergarten that there is a mom who is dropping her child to college, or sending away to the military, and I am sure that mom remembers when her little one was just as small as my kids are now.

May this be a good school year not only for my own children, but for everyone who has a student or teacher that they love beginning another year and hoping it is one that they are happy, safe, and healthy.

MEGAN RATHZ
When Nature Speaks

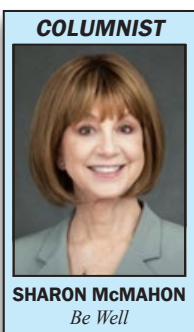

All you need is the air that you breathe

"If you know the art of breathing you have the wisdom and courage of ten tigers." – Chinese adage Breathing ... if you are reading this you are most assuredly breathing! It is the most important job of our bodies, yet we seldom give thought to this necessary function.

Our first official act after leaving the womb is to – what – breathe! That most important activity is priority No. 1 in the delivery room! As our little bodies face the world, we actually begin life breathing correctly. (In this column, I will not address either child or adult breathing diseases and issues.)

Have you ever observed a baby or small child sleeping? If so, you probably noted the long, deep breaths that are a natural part of the intake of oxygen and the outflow of carbon dioxide. This is the natural breath for which our bodies are designed. This is the breath of those who are not stressed, not worried, not anxious. So what happened? Life, it seems ...

SHARON McMAHON
Be Well

The next time you feel angry, stressed, or anxious, pay attention to your breathing. Chances are when negative emotions run high, your breaths become short and shallow. In fact, I would bet that many of us rarely take more than a couple of deep breaths during an entire day. Whether you experience stress, negative emotions, or physical pain, the body responds in a similar way every time and may include rapid heartbeat, tightening muscles, dilated pupils, and short, quick breaths. When these emotions or pains begin, the body starts pumping out the juices (namely adrenaline and cortisol) that fuel the responses and lead to shallow breathing.

So what exactly do deep breathing exercises do for you? When you learn to take deep, slow breaths your body reacts in many positive ways. Your muscles relax, oxygen delivery improves and you will notice improved mental concentration and physical stamina, your blood pressure lowers, endorphins are released which can help with pain relief, and detoxification improves which helps the lymphatic system function properly encouraging the release of harmful toxins. Proper breathing can also help your digestive tract, something that appeals to most of us! Breathing practice begins each of the FlexAbility classes I teach and enables us to both relax and focus our energy. (FlexAbility class will begin again at the Noblesville HEPL branch in January, with a special introductory class in early December. Stay tuned!)

When practicing deep breathing, remember to move the belly with the breath, breathing slowing and deeply from the diaphragm, which is the engine of breath. Keep your upper body quiet and the upper chest muscles soft. Expand your tummy as you inhale, let your tummy fall as you exhale. Lengthen your exhalation; when we are stressed our exhalations tend to grow short and choppy. Your exhalation should be slightly longer than your inhalation. Deep breathing can offer a mini-massage for the muscles and organs of your entire body, so make a point each day to practice deep, slow, and mindful breathing. Soon it will become a habit.

Like many of you, I have spent time this summer watching incredible Olympians perform amazing feats of athletics unlike anything we could imagine for ourselves. However young these incredible Olympians may be, we can actually have something in common with all of them. Proper breathwork gives them the focus, strength, concentration, and necessary oxygen levels to excel in their sport. As you watched them prepare to swim, run, jump and twirl, or whatever – they all practice their breathwork before their bodies engage. So that is one thing we can incorporate into our own "training" regimen! (Keep in mind that they practice proper stretching as well to help prevent injury.)

Breathe!

A problem delayed but not averted with Medicare Part D

Millions of people who are eligible for Medicare, but are still working past age 65, just dodged a bullet.

The new $2,000 cap on out-of-pocket Medicare Part D spending will have some unintended consequences. One will impact millions of people still working past age 65 with creditable coverage through their employer. Creditable Coverage means that your drug coverage plan through your work insurance is "as good or better" than what Medicare Part D offers. Since most employer health plans lump the maximum you can spend on your medications in a year together with your other health costs, the government has kicked this can down the road. While this could have created a crisis for people with work insurance this year, it won't. But eventually, the government either changes the rules again or every employer group health plan will have to break out your maximum costs for medications. If the amount is over $2,000 your plan may not meet the creditable coverage guidelines.

SYLVIA GORDON
Make Sense of Medicare

When you are age 65 or older and do not have creditable coverage, you'll face a Medicare Part D late penalty. Be aware this is a pending issue for those working past age 65, but will not cause a problem in 2025.

lot of the time, my baby boy is still living at home. It all feels so safe. It is not perfect, but it is as close as it ever could be I suppose.

But, as much as I wish for that, it is not the reality of life. I cannot control when/if that sudden decrease in strength comes. I pray it never will, but I also know that some days it feels scarily close. The odds are stacked against me.

I will take all the standing pictures and videos of me walking, so I may never forget what that looked like if things change. I will be able to go back and have my nostalgic moment if I need to. While I do not think it is good to live in the past, missing life's current moments, I think a visit every now and then to the good parts is good for the soul. It inspires me to create more good memories.

I have fought my entire life just to keep walking. From my heavy metal leg braces, countless surgeries, rehabs, often missing my childhood due to these things. I have paid a hefty price. That is why it is so valuable to me. If you had trained relentlessly for 50 years for something, you would not want to let it go either. You would cling to it with your life.

Humble courage. Facing life when the odds are stacked

Sharen Kay Ritchie

August 21, 1953 – September 2, 2024

Sharen Kay Ritchie, 71, Carmel, was called to her heavenly home on September 2, 2024. She was born on August 21, 1953, in Washington State. As a young girl she moved to California where she resided until she was an adult. Sharen was preceded in death by her mother.

Sharen loved God from the time she was a child. This love of Christ led her to move to Ohio where she could help spread the Gospel of Christ to those around her. She served in ministry in Ohio for several years before settling in Indiana. Throughout her life, Sharen worked in several service and sales industries. At the age of 12, she actually managed a hotel! After moving to Indiana, Sharen worked as head cashier at the Carmel Marsh on the night shift. This would make perfect sense as Sharen was a night owl! She retired from Marsh and began cleaning homes and churches. She took great pride in her work.

Sharen had a wonderful sense of humor and genuinely loved all the people in her life. In the Spring of 2023, Sharen became a faithful member of Faith Apostolic Church and will be greatly missed by the entire congregation.

A Worship Service and Celebration of Sharen's life was held Wednesday, September 4, 2024, at Faith Apostolic Church, 1212 E. 116th St., Carmel.

One of the greatest joys in Sharen's life was generously giving her offering to support the missionaries who would continue spreading the Gospel of Christ to many foreign lands. Each week she looked forward to attending church, especially on Sundays.

In lieu of flowers, and in honor and memory of Sharen, please consider donating to the same missionaries that Sharen supported. This can be done by sending a check to Faith Apostolic Church. In the memo line, include missionaries.

Bussell Family Funerals is privileged to care for Sharen. Condolences: bussellfamilyfunerals.com

Dave M. Carrington
 Sept. 30, 1972 – Aug. 30, 2024

Dave M. Carrington, 51, Sheridan, passed away suddenly in his home on Aug. 30, 2024. He was born in Stanley, Wis., on Sept. 30, 1972, to Mark R. Carrington and Yvonne M. (Ludvik) Carrington-Buss.

Dave adored his children and all who surrounded him. He was effortlessly compassionate, and everyone who knew him has a story of him showing up in their time of need. Dave was already a guardian spirit during his years here on Earth.

Dave's interest in design engineering began at 18 years old and his career of professional hobbyist at a young age. There was no project he couldn't get 90% done, allowing those close to him the opportunity to learn, while helping finish the remaining 10%.

You could find Dave in his workshop, behind a dungeon master trifold, on a soccer field (coaching or playing), on the victorious side of a Magic game, on the track behind the wheel of his Camaro, rehabilitating animals, in the front row of a concert, anywhere he could cheer on the Redskins, Liverpool, or his children, providing private guitar sessions, gardening, preparing beautiful meals – the list goes on and on. Dave loved using his many talents and skills to benefit others, for which he rarely even accepted a proper "thank you." He was the sort of guy that not only fit in anywhere but would light up any room he entered.

Dave is survived by his mother and stepfather, Yvonne M. Carrington-Buss and Mark D. Buss; his partner and her daughter, April M. and Danielle L. Deuschle; his paternal siblings, Evan D., Auriana T., and Breylen R. Carrington; his children, Dominique M., Daniel J., and Dylan M. Carrington; also, his other-species children, Tessa the Great Dane, Bella the Ori Pei, Finn the Pug, Charlie the turtle, and a couple generations of wondrous fish.

Dave was preceded in death by his maternal grandparents, Joseph B. Ludvik and Patricia A. Salter; his paternal grandparents, Euel D. Carrington and Colleen C. (Clifford) Carrington; his father, Mark R. Carrington; as well as his dear brother, Brian J. Carrington. His family all find great peace in knowing Dave is reunited with his brother, loved ones, and his zoo of animals.

Visitation and a celebration of life service for Dave Carrington were held on Friday, Sept. 6 at Cornerstone Lutheran Church Carmel, 4850 E. Main St.

In lieu of flowers the family asks to consider donations to the following causes: Noblesville Youth Soccer League, Kicking the Stigma, and Hope for the Day.

Steve Peyton
 d. September 4, 2024

Steve Peyton, 72, Westfield, surprised us all by being able to pass away on Wednesday, September 4, despite having beaten cancer, survived 40 radiation treatments, seven major heart attacks, four heart stents, an aortic valve replacement, 1,200 dialysis treatments, being struck by lightning twice, being upside down in a car five times (none of which he was driving), and being present for the disastrous Bull Island Music Festival in 1972.

Born in Bedford, Ind., he loved fighting for the disadvantaged, standing up for underdogs, over indulging in life, witty quips, and unsanctioned wrestling matches with his grandchildren, Hunter and River Peyton. He could tame the hearts of animals or women with a single glance, but his heart only ever loved one woman his whole life, Kim Peyton, his wife of 45 years, whom he wooed on their first date at the snake pit of the Indianapolis 500.

He was kicked out of high school once with some of his best friends for riding a motorcycle through the halls of Westfield High School, where he still holds athletic records and was voted prom king, he was kicked out of a church card game for standing up for gay rights, and he was kicked out of a handful of bars and music concerts from the Caribbean to Lapel for misunderstandings or over imbibing in their wares. One such expulsion was a Flogging Molly concert with his son Jayme, whom he loved with all his heart and had great pride for his fatherhood, glasswork skills, and musicianship. He loved cheap drip coffee, Prairie Farms cottage cheese, and the home cooking of his daughter-in-law, Breezy Peyton, wife of Reverend Peyton, with whom he shared a special bond. He taught his son, Reverend Peyton, listed by the Indianapolis Star as one of the top 25 Indiana musicians of all time, every single thing he knew on the guitar and never took credit.

He is also survived by his beloved brothers "Uncle" Greg, Jim, and Joe Peyton and his beloved sister Patty Downs and literally thousands of friends, extended family, and acquaintances across the world whose hearts are broken at the loss of a man that never knew a stranger or an enemy despite living life beyond the boundaries of civilized society.

He is preceded in death by his mother Phyllis Peyton and his father Bill Peyton, with whom we know he is currently toasting with brown liquor over heaven's grand bar. The life of the party died the way he lived, surrounded by family and friends who loved him and in a Rev. Peyton's Big Damn Band T-shirt.

In his honor we will be holding a celebration of life party at 4 p.m. Saturday, September 14 at Sun King Brewery in Fishers.

Tigers tally touchdowns in final minutes, topple Millers in overtime

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

FISHERS – With the right plays at the right time, the Fishers football team picked up a huge comeback victory last Friday night.

The Tigers were down 14-0 to Noblesville with under four minutes to go in the fourth quarter, but Fishers came back to win in overtime 17-14 at Everwise Credit Union Field. The Tigers scored two touchdowns in those final few minutes, then Jon Tangara kicked a field goal in the extra period for the win.

The Millers scored first, with Israel Oladipupo running into the end zone from four yards midway through the second quarter. Caden Lytle made the extra point kick.

Right before halftime, Noblesville's Mason Prestis made a 76-yard punt to pin Fishers at its one-yard line. The Tigers tried to drive down the field, with Gage Sturgill connecting three passes to JonAnthony Hall and one to Denkota Fletcher but were stopped at mid-field. Noblesville went into the break leading 7-0.

“Our defense has played tough,” said Tigers coach Curt Funk. “Our offense, we were struggling there. We were trying to run the ball but we didn’t have the wind. We just couldn’t sustain drives.”

Neither team scored in the third quarter. The Millers put together a resolute drive with 10 minutes left in the quarter, making two fourth-down conversions along the way. The second conversion saw Ty Holmes make a 16-yard run on 4th-and-1 carrying what seemed like all of both teams on his back.

But he made it and gave Noblesville 1st-and-goal at the three. Holmes then cruised the three yards for the score, and Lytle’s kick put the Millers up 14-0.

With 3:57 left, the Tigers began their comeback. Sturgill sent a pass to Carsen Eloms, who took it 48 yards into the end zone. Fishers got the ball back after inducing a Noblesville three-and-out, and Sturgill struck again, sending a nine-yard

TD throw to Hall. Tangara kicked both extra points.

Sturgill finished the game 16-of-29, totaling 177 yards.

“Gage, he’s a fighter. He’s a warrior,” said Funk, who praised his quarterback with making good decisions for the entire game.

The Tigers got another three-and-out, giving them the ball back at the 50-yard line. Fishers made a couple of first downs to reach the 18-yard line, but a 1st-and-10 pass was intercepted by Holmes. That sent the game to overtime, where Tangara’s 3rd-and-5 field goal from 22 yards won the game.

“I thought, ‘Well, maybe we can sneak it in, maybe a run where it doesn’t even come down to that,’” said Funk. “But we decided to go third down kick in case we had a bad snap or something, we’d have a little chance.”

Hall, a Stanford commit, made 11 catches for 97 yards. Brady Griffiths led the rushing with 91 yards. TJ Grace had nine total tackles, while Jev Hutton made six solo tackles, including a sack.

Holmes led Noblesville’s rushing with 94 yards.

“Very proud of our guys,” said Millers coach Dave Sharpe. “They didn’t deserve to lose this one, but sometimes funny things happen in the final couple minutes of a game. But I’m incredibly proud of how hard we played.”

The game was the first Hoosier Crossroads Conference contest of the season for both teams. Overall, Fishers is 2-1 and plays the Mudsock game at Hamilton Southeastern Friday. Noblesville is also 2-1 and hosts Westfield Friday.

Greyhounds show Ohioans how it’s done

The REPORTER

Carmel took a trip to the Dayton, Ohio area last Friday to play Centerville, and came home with a 44-23 victory.

The Greyhounds rolled through the first quarter, scoring 20 unanswered points. Andrew Pemberton made two long touchdown runs from 40 and 41 yards during the period, with Anthony Coellner tossing a 13-yard touchdown pass to Jacob Bellin in between.

The Elks scored 10 points in the second period, but Carmel avoided a second-quarter shutout when Lukas Krishtanmoorthy made a field goal at the end of the period.

That gave the Hounds a 23-10 lead at the halftime break.

Coellner threw for his second touchdown of the game in the third quarter, finding Nathan Williams for a 21-yard score. In the fourth quarter, Dominic Shockley punched the ball in for a one-yard TD, then Aiden Dickerson got a pick six, taking an interception return 59 yards to the end zone.

Pemberton reached 100 yards rushing on 11 carries. Coellner went 19-of-29 for 185 yards, with Williams collecting nine receptions for 104 yards.

Carmel is 2-1 and hosts Louisville Trinity Friday.

Golden Eagles come out swinging, with Linden racking up 325 yards

The REPORTER

Guerin Catholic put on a show when it came to offense during its game with Heritage Christian last Friday at the Eagles Nest.

The Golden Eagles took care of Heritage 53-34. Guerin Catholic scored just 67 seconds into the game, as Jack Linden finished a 66-yard drive with a two-yard touchdown run. Linden then ran in a two-point conversion.

Late in the first quarter, Malcolm Houze connected with Aiden Horn for two short touchdown passes, and that gave GC a 22-6 lead going into the second quarter. Houze kept the momentum going in the new period, hitting Hayden Cler for a 31-yard TD throw just seconds into the period.

Nick Wilson kicked a field goal with less than a minute left in the second quarter. Heritage scored a last-second touchdown to end the half, then scored on a 20-yard pass with 7:25 left in the third period to get within 32-27.

The Golden Eagles answered that score quickly, with Linden punching the ball in from the one. Heritage Christian scored again late in the third on a 17-yard run, keeping the HC Eagles within 40-34 going into the fourth quarter.

But Guerin Catholic took control in the final period, with two touchdowns. Linden blasted off for a 40-yard run just 23 seconds into the quarter, then Houze made a short pass to Adam McNeany midway through the fourth. Wilson kicked four extra points.

Linden had a monster game, racking up 325 yards on 44 carries. Houze was 9-of-12 through the air for 150 yards, with Cler catching five of those throws.

The Golden Eagles are 3-0 and host Brebeuf Jesuit Friday to begin Circle City Conference play.

Royals spread out scoring in road win over Avon

The REPORTER

Hamilton Southeastern hit the road for the second time in their first three games and that didn’t seem to matter.

The Royals used a steady run game and an interception return score to cruise to a 28-10 win last Friday at Avon to start Hoosier Crossroads Conference action off on the right foot.

After a stalemate at 0-0 in the first, Avon struck first to get up 7-0. But, it didn’t take long for HSE to tie it 7-7 on a Carter Reed touchdown, which would wind up as the halftime score.

An Orioles field goal with just under four minutes in the third gave them a temporary lead of 10-7.

Carter Reed helped regain the lead at 14-10 late in the third, which Southeastern would not relinquish.

The advantage lengthened when Ty Earlewine intercepted an Avon pass and ran it back for a TD, pushing the lead to 21-10.

Chandler Weston put the icing on the cake with a five-yard touchdown pass to Kendrick Pennybaker that would account for the final score of 28-10.

Brennan Baker led the Royals with 94 yards rushing on 18 carries, while Carter Reed ran 14 times for 60 yards and his pair of TDs.

The Royals’ defense forced a total of three interceptions. Kian Kelly and Andrew Babb joined Earlewine with picks.

Hamilton Southeastern (3-0, 1-0 HCC) hosts Fishers (2-1, 1-0 HCC) on Friday for the Mudsock. The Tigers held off Noblesville at home in overtime last night, 17-14.

Westfield makes quick work of Zionsville at home

The REPORTER

Westfield came out fast in its Hoosier Crossroads Conference opener with Zionsville last Friday, and that led the Shamrocks to a 28-10 victory at Riverview Health Stadium.

Westfield scored two touchdowns in the first quarter, both on short rushes. Carsen Melvin got the Rocks on the board with a five-yard trip into the end zone, then Mikeah Webster punched the ball in front of the one with 17 seconds left in the period.

A Zionsville field goal was the only scoring in the second quarter, so Westfield led 14-3 at halftime. The Eagles cut that lead to 14-10 with a 22-yard passing touchdown early in the third period.

Melvin answered that late in the third, as his 20-yard throw to Preston Pakala resulted in a touchdown. Midway through the fourth period, Melvin connected with Broc Parker on a seven-yard TD pass, and the Rocks stayed comfortably ahead from that point forward. Owen Wright kicked all four extra points.

Melvin was 12-of-17, totaling 143 yards, with

Parker Knott and Pakala both making three catches. Deacon King led the rushing with 70 yards. Keegan Krupp had 10 tackles (five solo, five assists), including 2.5 for a loss and one sack. Krupp and Isaac Weingart both forced one fumble and Samuel Poriah had 3.5 tackles for a loss.

Westfield is 3-0 and plays Friday at Noblesville.

Blackhawks back at it, shut out Tri-Central in first win of the season

The REPORTER

Sheridan picked up its first win of the season last Friday, shutting out Tri-Central 29-0 at Bud Wright Stadium.

It was the Blackhawks' Hoosier Heartland Conference opener as well. Sheridan scored its first touchdown of the game in the second quarter, with Alex Cravens taking an 18-yard run into the end zone. Jacob Hall caught a two-point conversion throw from Caleb Alexander, and the Hawks had an 8-0 halftime lead.

"We played a lot better than we had been," said Sheridan coach Bud Wright. "We had a slow start, but we kept getting better. We played pretty good the second half."

The Blackhawks put up 21 points in the second half. Caleb Alexander caught two touchdown passes from Brock Hagan; both throws were over 40 yards.

"He was awful nervous to start with," said Wright. "He settled down in the second half and did a nice job."

Hagan also ran for a touchdown, a three-yard sprint with 36 seconds left in the third quarter. Owen Bell kicked all three extra points.

Hagan threw 5-for-8 and totaled 121 yards. Jaylen Arnold led the rushing with 109 yards. Sheridan's defense was exceptional, especially on the pass — the Blackhawks held the Trojans to minus 4 yards over the air.

"For the most part, we buckled down and stopped them," said Wright.

Sheridan is 1-2 and travels to Clinton Central Friday.

Tigers come out on top in five-set battle with Noblesville

By RICHIE HALL

NOBLESVILLE – The Noblesville and Fishers volleyball teams battled their way through five sets last Thursday at The Mill, with the Tigers prevailing to stay unbeaten in Hoosier Crossroads Conference action.

Fishers edged out the Millers 21-25, 25-18, 25-20, 20-25, 15-10.

It was a scrappy and hard-fought match, with the Tigers going on late runs in each of three sets they won to seal the victory.

The Tigers went on an 11-1 run in the fifth set to take a 13-5 lead. Senior Ellen Roberts put down a kill to begin the run, then senior Juliana Kellogg later hit back-to-back aces. Sophomore Milana Mays hit four kills in the set.

Fishers led 14-7, setting up several match points. The Millers saved three of them, all courtesy of kills by Ashlynn Turner. But the Tigers converted their fourth match point to get the win.

"It's nice that when the backs are against the wall and it's a decisive set that we play our best," said Fishers coach Steven Peek. "We had two aces, we had a great block, we had Milana get four kills, all in the fifth set. Some of our best, most consistent serving was the fifth set."

Noblesville led 13-8 in the first set, including an ace by sophomore Piper Endris, then Turner struck again with a kill to put the Millers up 14-9. Noblesville was able to stay comfortably in front for the remainder of the set.

The second and third sets were both close until Fishers pulled away late in both sets. The Tigers were up 11-8 in the second set before Madison Brown's net tip and an ace by Kennedy Lutz helped tie the set at 11-11.

But with the score tied at 14-14, the Tigers went on an 8-1 spurt to lead 22-

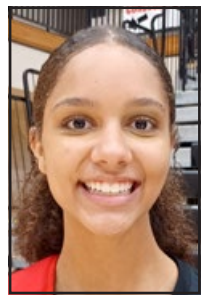

15. Isabella Bowman hit two kills during the run, and Ella Dragoo, Aubree Valcourt and Ava Gutt all put down kills as well. Gutt made the kill on set point.

In the third set, the score was again tied 14-14 before Fishers jumped ahead 16-14. A run of three straight points got the Tigers up 22-17, including a Dragoo ace. Fishers fought off some resistance from Noblesville, and Tinch dumped a pass over the net on set point to give the Tigers the third set.

The Millers turned the tables in the fourth set, when they broke out of a 15-15 tie to score four straight points. Turner hit a kill for the first point, then Lutz and Turner each hit a kill. Miranda Bledsoe served an ace and Noblesville led 19-15. The Millers won the set when Chloe Macias served an ace.

Noblesville led 4-2 in the fifth set before Fishers made its run.

"They got on a run, and it was difficult to crawl out of that," said Noblesville coach Joe Marcum.

Unified Flag Football

Defending state champion 'Hounds start season by beating Tigers at home

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

CARMEL – The Carmel Unified flag football team hosted Fishers last Wednesday at Brian Murray Stadium.

The two teams put on a show by playing an exciting game filled with touchdowns and great plays. The Greyhounds pulled away in the second half to beat the Tigers 66-53, starting the 2024 season with a victory.

Carmel coach Jamie Stephen said it was technically her team's second game, but the first one barely got started: the Greyhounds tried to play at Westfield last week, but only got one play in before thunderstorms forced it to be canceled. Fishers, meanwhile, was playing in its first game of the season.

The Greyhounds won the school's first-ever Unified flag football state championship last year, beating DeKalb in the title game at Grand Park. Now they want to repeat: Stephen said the Carmel team is "more determined to win this year I've ever seen before."

"They have been more determined to win this year than I've ever seen before," said Stephen. The coach said her team "got a taste of it last year and they just want to keep going."

This year's Carmel team has several players returning from last year's championship squad. That includes senior captains Stone Stephenson, Will McKee, Eleanor Stock and Hannah Pettee.

Also returning is sophomore Joseph Gasta, who Stephen said is "by far our best player on the team. He's our center."

Stephen said her team "did great" for its first game. She said the Greyhounds have a "great group of seniors that were able to lead us and be very positive role models for all their peers. I think it's a great start for our season."

Carmel graduated 30 seniors from last year's team, but Stephen said that several of this year's seniors came out and "did the research and knew what they were doing, and we now have another strong team."

Fishers has 35 players on its roster, with Carter

Schmidt, Caleb Hartman and Jackson Keller among those making big plays for the Tigers.

"I think it was a great game, both teams, high-powered offenses," said Fishers coach David Rawlins. "It was a lot of fun to get back into flag football and start the season off."

"I think there's a lot of competitive spirit, but also really good sportsmanship, camaraderie between both sides. Hard-fought game, but it's really fun to get out there."

The Greyhounds' next game is Wednesday at Franklin Central, while the Tigers play tonight at Westfield.
