Sheridan school board issues statement about Coach Wright

Submitted by Sheridan Community Schools Board of Trustees

Editor's note: When the Hamilton County Reporter reached out to Sheridan Community Schools administrators Tuesday evening regarding Coach Bud Wright's resignation, we received a short statement from Superintendent Dr. Dave Mundy. On Wednesday morning, the School Board followed up with a longer statement, which to announce his retirement then, we present to our readers in its entirety and without edits.

Holiday hustle

This time of year, is a time of many different mixed emotions for many. Some enjoy the holidays, and for some it is a difficult season for many reasons.

Whatever you celebrate, chances are you are already feeling a tad overwhelmed. Maybe it is buying gifts, trying to please everyone, or anxiety towards holiday get-togethers with family/friends that you have not seen in a while. Social anxiety is real. Perhaps the holidays are the most joyful time of the year for you, and you just wish the season would last longer.

For me, I enjoy a lot of things about the holiday season. I absolutely adore the ambiance that the Christmas lights bring to my home. I really enjoy decorating for Christmas. The past couple of years, I really noticed a difference in my ability to decorate on my own. Normally, my husband and I tag team the decorating. He likes to do the tree, and I do the other areas of the house. This year, I said to him, "Can we just do it all together?" I was not feeling up to tackling my normal duties on my own. Another reminder that this progressive muscle disease sneakily steals things from me. I am grateful for a husband who is willing and able to help me. Even our boys joined in on the tree decorating which was a welcome surprise.

I have always done a majority of the holiday gift buying throughout the years. I enjoy it. I like going to stores and picking things out for loved ones. There is something about being out and about during the holiday season. There is a different energy. This year, there will likely be more online shopping, and I have also had to ask my husband if he would help get some of the gifts.

Everyday life with a disability is so physically exhausting. Our bodies are working overtime at all times just to exist. The holiday season feels like that ramps up times 100. There are holiday parties, family get-togethers, and, like I mentioned above, the gift buying. It is a constant battle between wanting to do so many activities but

Santa Claus crafting Christmas magic for Noblesville community

What is your family's story?

I only found out recently about one of the branches of my family on my wife's side.

John McMullan was one of her original ancestors in America. He was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1740 of Scotch-Irish descent. He immigrated to the Colony of Virginia in 1760. A tailor by trade, he brought to America a cypress wood chest which contained all the necessary tools for tailoring. In 1769 he married Theodosia Beasley who was born in Orange County, Va.

The family recorded that he cut and sewed together the first military suit worn by Gen. George Washington, after he was made Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army in 1776. John McMillan entered the war as a private in the 3rd Company of Col. Daniel Morgan's 11th and 15th Virginia Regiments. He served to the close of the war and then settled in Swift Run Gap, Blue Ridge Mountains, Orange County, Va., on a tract of 310 acres of land patented to him by the Commonwealth of Virginia.

John had five children with his first wife, and when she passed away in 1779 or 1780, he married Elizabeth Stowens and they had 10 children together.

John left Virginia and moved to Georgia. He took with him the Taylor's chest that contained the tools with which he made the suit for General Washington. At his death, the chest became the property of his second son, Patrick, who owned it until his death in 1836, at which time it passed to William, the oldest son of Patrick. In 1866, the chest was taken to Newton, Miss., then the property of William Marion, the oldest son of William. William Marion died in 1900, and since that time the chest was the property of his son, William Jesse Marion, until his death.

The chest spans 15-by-17-by-27.5 inches outside measurements and is a treasured family heirloom. The heirs of William Jesse Marion currently hold the box.

Civility was the rule at Noblesville Council meeting on Morse Village

The REPORTER

The Tuesday, Dec. 3 meeting of the Noblesville Common Council was both well-attended and exceptionally civil. That last part is of note considering a presentation with public comment for the proposed Morse Village development was on the agenda.

The public comments allowed at the Common Council meeting were an opportunity for those who did not get the chance to speak at the earlier Noblesville Plan Commission meeting to go on the record about Morse Village.

There were several changes to the project plan since the last Plan Commission meeting in November, all of which were highlighted Tuesday evening.

According to Council President Darren Peterson, there will likely be an opportunity for the public to speak again at the upcoming Dec. 17 Common Council meeting, which is when a vote of the project is expected to take place.

The ordinances

At issue were ordinances 72-11-24 and 73-11-24, changes in zoning from single-family residential areas to a mix of single-family residential, multi-family residential, and planned business zoning for the 173 acres of the Morse Village project near Hague Road and 206th Street.

The text of those ordinances is available at these links: 72-11-34 and 73-11-24.

Before discussing any of the project details, Mayor Chris Jensen thanked Peterson for using a non-traditional two-meeting setting so more citizens would have the chance to be heard.

Talking with citizens

Jensen said he has visited the homes of concerned citizens and met with the public in other venues over this project in recent weeks.

"I want to acknowledge the many people that are here tonight in public, the many people who are tuning in online, the several people who reached out to me," Jensen said. "I've answered every email, every phone call, every text message, every Facebook message personally. I have had the chance last week to spend nearly two

There has been controversy about comments May-

As my disease progresses, I must progress, too. Otherwise, life will just leave me behind. If I want to keep living well, I need to keep adapting and moving forward. Changing at a speed that I never asked for.

I need to learn to be okay with asking for help in new areas. For me, that is the hardest thing. I value my independence so much. I have felt what it is like to have it taken away throughout my life after surgeries or setbacks. It is a feeling that I despise, and quite honestly it terrifies me. I do not want to be on someone else's time schedule; I want to do things on my own. That is what makes me feel alive. I will fight for that until every bit of me cannot. But I know I must be smart about it and ask for help as I need it.

The holiday season is certainly a time when we could all use a little extra help. It takes humble courage to ask for and accept from Page 1 help, but when we do, we I recognize and own that the are reminded of why community and connection are so important. We were never meant to do life all on our own, even if we want to. Small asks can sometimes lead to great relief and unexpected joys.

As my family celebrates the Christmas season, for us, it's a reminder of what is really important: the reason for the season. Whatever holiday you celebrate, I hope that you can find a sliver of joy, even on the hardest of days. I do believe there is always something to be grateful for, even if it is just the tiniest of things.

Seek it out. I believe you will find it.

It was also noted that Harbour Trees currently has a waiting list for new members that is two years long, so new residents to this development are not likely to get a membership until long after they have moved in.

Public comments

After LOR Corporation's 30 minutes presentation detailing the project and the new changes that came as result of community feedback, the meeting was opened to public comments.

Public comments were far too numerous to go over in detail, but we are highlighting a few and providing a link to the video of the meeting at the end of this article.

Two attorneys from Paganelli Law Group spoke of concerns about the sustainability of existing businesses in the area and the long-term effects on residents already living nearby, as well as the concerns about the long-term survival of nearby Harbour Trees Golf and Beach Club in light of the increased water usage that will be required.

Harbour Trees has wells providing millions of gallons of water per year for business operations. Both a Paganelli attorney and Harbour Trees owner Andy Gigante spoke about how any impact on the existing water table could damage the golf club.

"I played golf with [American golf course designer] Pete Dye," Gigante said. "This is one of his original works. It's like a work of art to golfers and to the golf help keep citizens informed.

not something you work for. You work to avoid it."

Deb Polise is a Hamilton County realtor who said she has been working in the industry for two decades.

"I have witnessed many developments, both successful and harmful," Polise said. "Based on my experience, I can say with complete certainty that rezoning this property in the West Pointe with townhomes, even three stories high, is going to damage the beauty and character and natural resources of this land and surrounding neighborhoods. Three-story townhomes are one of our worst products on the market, okay? You probably don't know that because you don't sell them. But I can't remember the last time I sold a three-story townhome.

People don't want the stairs. They do not."

Polise also stressed the obligation of the city to its current residents first.

After public comments, Mayor Jensen and LOR Corporation officials were given time to respond. Several members of the Common Council also asked their own questions and asked that they be addressed before a vote is taken at the next meeting, which is scheduled for Dec. 17 at 7 p.m. A vote on these two ordinances is expected to take place at that meeting.

Letter to the Editor -

Shaffer sick of people in power ignoring rules

Dear Editor:

There was a time when you abided by the law, the rules of the game, the agreed-upon decrees and that was that.

Some things we just took for granted:

· Countries had borders.

· Politicians were held accountable for lies and deceptions.

• People paid their taxes.

• Winners got trophies and losers didn't.

Stuff like that.

Now we find ourselves hosting illegal immigrants, hearing a President would not and then would pardon his son, IRS employees owe billions in back taxes, and everybody gets a trophy just for showing up.

You can add to the list.

One favorite locally is the superintendent of schools who, when caught politicking for two school board candidates was given a pass from school Policy 9700.01.

It states that "no one may use his/her involvement or position in a school-related organization to promote his/her own or any other candidacy for public office."

The employee of Carmel taxpayers was excused because he took a day of personal vacation to do it.

What could be clearer than Policy 9700.01?

It says nothing about taking a day off to be exempt from it.

As they say on the sports channel:

"C'mon, Man."

And that goes all the up to the President in the humble opinion of your faithful correspondent.

Face-paced & funny, this Christmas show will really stuff your stockings

By ADAM CROWE A Seat on the Aisle

The Phoenix Theatre (at the Phoenix Theatre Cultural Center) is presenting its 16th version of founder Bryan Fonseca's answer to traditional holiday entertainment. A Verv Phoenix Xmas: It's A Wonderful Die Hard Life Story Actually is the latest variation in a long line of holiday sketches, musical numbers, and edgy humor.

Culling scripts from submissions from various area writers, A Very Phoenix Xmas is a tradition intent on skewering other holiday traditions. If that sounds a bit meta, it's really just a way to showcase local performers and writers making fun of December holiday tropes. This year's theme is Holiday Movies and, as you can tell from the title, all the usual suspects are "present."

As it does every year, the success of the show is dependent on the proper mix of good writing and strong performers. This year's mix is supported by a cast of five who know exactly what they are doing. Matthew Altman, Devan Mathias, Paige Neely, Zachariah Stonerock, and Kelsey Van Voorst combine to pull laughs from expected targets, as well as a few unexpected ones (Rosemary's Baby?). The cast is strong and nearly all of the writing is worthy of their talents. A running joke referencing It's a Wonderful Life might not hold up as well without the amazing Jimmy Stewart presented by Stonerock. Overall, the show never wears out its welcome, though tighter pacing and scene changes couldn't hurt.

Don't miss these critical holiday shipping deadlines

Submitted by Stamps.com

With peak season holiday shopping underway, shipping could become a major stressor for consumers this year.

A new survey by Stamps.com, a leading provider of postal and shipping solutions from Auctane, reveals 40 percent of U.S. consumers are unaware of crucial holiday shipping deadlines. This oversight can lead to last-minute scrambles, higher shipping costs, and packages arriving late, possibly after the holidavs.

Generational divide: Baby Boomers vs. Millennials

holiday shipping deadline

Key Shipping Deadlines

- Dec. 13: Last day for FedEx Ground Economy
- Dec. 18: Last day for USPS Ground Advantage and First-Class Mail
- Dec. 19: Last day for UPS 3 Day Select and USPS Priority Mail
- Dec. 20: Last day for UPS 2nd Day Air
- Dec. 21: Last day for USPS Priority Mail Express

Note: UPS Ground dates may vary highlight the importance younger generations place on receiving their deliveries on time.

Shipping delays are common

With millions of packages set to hit the system, it is not uncommon for shipping delays to occur in the holiday season. Of those surveyed, 66 percent The survey found a have experienced holiday generational difference in shipping delays, with Gen ers prioritize delivery dates, Z reporting the highest rate awareness, with 53 percent of delays at 73 percent, compared to 49 percent of Baby Boomers. Again, this highlights that younger generations are less tolerant of delays and prioritize fast and efficient shipping. "As the holiday season approaches, it's crucial for consumers to be prepared and aware of shipping deadlines to ensure their gifts arrive on time," Stamps. com General Manager Nick Spitzman said. "Our survey highlights the significant portion of consumers who are unaware of these deadlines, particularly older generations. It's essential for retailers and shipping carriers to provide clear and timely information about shipping deadlines to help consumers avoid last-minute stress and disappointment. By planning ahead and being mindful of shipping timelines, consumers can enjoy a stress-free holiday season."

Gift-giving preferences impact shipping choices

The survey also revealed how generational preferences influence shipping choices. While Gen Z prioritizes speed and convenience, with nearly 40 percent prioritizing delivery dates, older generations often consider factors like cost and fragility. of Baby Boomers unaware of these cut-off dates, compared to just 32 percent of Millennials. Millennials are also more likely to prioritize guaranteed delivery, with 68 percent citing it as a key factor when choosing a shipping option this holiday season. These findings sis on affordability and protection from damage.

Willingness to pay extra for on-time delivery

Faced with the prospect of a late-arriving gift, a huge 83 percent of surveyed consumers are willing to pay extra for faster shipping. This trend is especially strong among Gen Z, with 56 percent willing to pay up, compared to just 27 percent of Baby Boomers.

The takeaway: plan ahead and be prepared

Stamps.com advises consumers to begin holiday shopping early and familiarize themselves with shipping deadlines across carriers. Since Thanksgiving fell later this year, the holiday season is shorter, making planning ahead even more essential. Choosing guaranteed delivery options may also be beneficial to avoid last-minute fees and delays.

Governor-elect Braun announces Freedom & Opportunity Agenda

Submitted

Governor-elect Mike Braun unveiled his Freedom and Opportunity Agenda on Tuesday, a comprehensive framework designed to take Indiana to new heights through targeted reforms and strategic investments.

"Our Freedom and Opportunity Agenda represents a bold vision for Indiana's future," Braun said. "By implementing these common-sense solutions, we'll create a more prosperous, safer, and stronger Indiana for every Hoosier family."

The agenda prioritizes:

1. Providing tax relief to address inflation and reduce the burden for everyday Hoosiers.

2. Delivering a leaner, more responsive government that runs efficiently and provides excellent constituent services.

3. Equipping Indiana's next generation through education. workforce development, and economic development.

4. Investing in a healthier Indiana by driving down healthcare costs, increasing access, and increasing transparency.

5. Improving quality of life for every Hoosier through public safety, affordable energy, and clean water.

The agenda combines executive action, legislative initiatives, and agency-level reforms to achieve these policy goals. More details about each of these priorities are outlined below:

Historic tax relief for Hoosier families

As Hoosiers contend with inflation, the State should provide comprehensive tax relief that protects taxpayers from runaway property taxes, supports retirees and families with targeted relief, and reduces the burden on Main Street businesses.

• Cap annual property tax increases at 2 to 3 percent to protect homeowners and farmers

• Cut property taxes by Create tax-advantaged Farm Savings Accounts to help stabilize farm income strategic

• Update the farmland base rate formula to provide targeted relief for agricultural communities

Streamlined, responsive government

A leaner, more responsive government is better for taxpayers and the economv. Unlike the private sector, where real economics incentivizes effectiveness and lower overhead, government at every level has grown unchecked. To reduce waste and improve the delivery of essential services, the State should develop strict performance metrics for its agencies, and eliminate unnecessary or underperforming positions and programs.

Consolidate state leadership into eight cabinet-level secretaries to improve efficiency

• Present a balanced budget that addresses the state's deficit while reforming Medicaid spending

· Launch comprehensive digital transformation of state services, including automated veteran healthcare eligibility verification, streamlined BMV document processing, and onestop online portal for farmer services

 Conduct systematic review to eliminate outdated regulations and reduce administrative burden

Education excellence & workforce development

 Focus on improved literacy and math outcomes with evidence-based curriculum

Healthcare transformation

Rising healthcare costs and limited access to care, particularly in rural areas, continue to challenge Hoosier families and healthcare providers. This multi-faceted strategy addresses both costs and healthcare accessibility while promoting innovation in the industry.

· Drive down healthcare costs through enhanced price transparency requirements, reformed prior authorization processes, and regulated pharmacy benefit managers

· Expand rural healthcare access through new incentives for rural healthcare facilities, enhanced telehealth coverage, and improved obstetrics access

• Protect coverage for pre-existing conditions

• Create Primary Care Access Revolving Fund to support new medical facilities

• Reform mental health treatment to reduce burden on criminal justice system

Enhanced public safety

Hoosier families and communities deserve to know that their safety and security are the top priority of the state government. Enhance the line of duty.

> · Support law enforcement through competitive salary and benefits packages, enhanced training opportunities, protected qualified immunity, and establishing non-discretionary minimum bail requirements for violent crimes

> · Combat drug trafficking through strengthened penalties for fentanyl and methamphetamine distribution, enhanced state police interdiction powers, and comprehensive prevention and recovery programs

> · Address illegal immigration by enforcing sanctuary city bans, enhancing cooperation with federal authorities, and preparing Indiana National Guard for potential border support

Lower energy costs for Hoosiers

Over the last decade, Hoosiers' electricity bills have increased dramatically, outpacing the national average. Indiana needs strong leadership to navigate these challenges and improve energy accessibility. The Braun administration will ensure that the State has enough affordable and reliable electricity to meet the needs of residents and attract new economic development.

• Ensure that Hoosiers always have access to affordable and reliable electricity and heat through a comprehensive all-of-theabove energy strategy, cutting red tape, and developing next-generation nuclear energy

The administration will immediately begin working with the Indiana General Assembly to advance these priorities during the upcoming legislative session.

"These reforms represent a comprehensive approach to Indiana's challenges," Braun said. "By implementing the Freedom and Opportunity Agenda, we'll ensure Indiana remains competitive while improving quality of life for every Hoosier."

Veteran K-9 handler welcomes new partner at ISP Pendleton District

The REPORTER

The Indiana State Police Pendleton District has announced the addition of a new K-9 team.

On Tuesday, Trooper Michael Thiron and his new partner, Ruger, graduated from the Indiana State Police K-9 Academy in Indianapolis.

The Indiana State Police K-9 Academy, a rigorous 12-week training program, prepares K-9 teams for a variety of law enforcement tasks, including obedience, tracking, area and building searches, article searches, aggression control, and narcotic detection.

Ruger, a 20-month-old Belgian Malinois/German Shepherd mix, will join Trooper Thiron in his ongoing efforts to counter the trafficking of illegal narcotics and crime across the Pendleton District.

Trooper Thiron, a nineyear veteran of the Indiana State Police, has served as a K-9 handler for three years. Ruger will be replacing Thiron's current partner, Yana, who is nearing retirement after years of dedicated service.

"Being a K-9 handler is more than a job" Thiron said. "It's a partnership built on trust, discipline, and an unbreakable bond."

ISP is proud to have one of the largest and most highly regarded K-9 programs in the country, and the addition of Ruger further strengthens the agency's commitment to keeping the citizens of Indiana safe.

Girls Basketball -

Royals prevail in hard-fought contest against Noblesville

By RICHIE HALL sports@readthereporter.com

NOBLESVILLE – A hard-fought girls basketball game went Hamilton Southeastern's way Wednesday night.

The Class 4A No. 2 Royals visited The Mill at Noblesville and held off the Millers 49-45 in a Hoosier Crossroads Conference contest. Southeastern jumped out to a double-digit advantage in the second quarter before the Millers came back, slowly chipping away at the Royals' lead. Noblesville then surged ahead a few times in the second half before Southeastern pulled ahead for good.

"Once they took the lead, we found a way to bounce back and get some key buckets," said Royals coach Brian Satterfield. "I know Kennedy was able to attack off the rim. We got some good ball movement, hit some shots and we were able to knock down free throws. But more importantly, down the stretch, the last three or four minutes, I thought we got some key stops."

Southeastern led 39-38 going into the fourth quarter. The Millers' C. C. Quigley used a putback to get her team up 40-39. Kennedy Holman answered that with a layin, to which Quigley responded by making another rebound basket.

That gave Noblesville a 42-41 lead, but HSE's Antonette Green took care of ing with 17 points and that with a 3-pointer. Holman helped out with an- while Stidham made three other basket, then Meredith 3s on her way to 15 points.

down the stretch when we needed to," said Satterfield.

Tippner scored the game's first points with a 3 at the 5:36 mark of the first quarter. Another Tippner triple gave Noblesville a 6-5 lead late in the first. Southeastern got going after that, making a 16-2 run that carried well into the second quarter.

Holman began the run with a putback, then Stidham drained a pair of 3s. Abby Brown's lavin finished the first-quarter scoring, then Maya Makalusky opened the second period with a 3. Holman's triple pushed the Royals ahead 21-8.

Millers freshman Maia Blower threw in a 3, which began a 17-7 run for Noblesville that lasted until halftime. Tippner poured in six points during that run, with Norah Vetor hitting a 3 and Kate Rollins making a traditional threepoint play.

Southeastern led 28-25 at the break and was able to stay ahead for most of the third quarter. Stidham answered a Rollins 3 with an and-1 to put HSE up 35-29. Blower drained another 3 for the Millers and Rollins' triple gave Noblesville its first lead since the first quarter at 38-37. Stidham put the Royals back on top at 39-38 with two free throws, and the teams would continue that battle into the fourth quarter.

al Hoosier 690 Pro/Am this coming weekend at Roundtripper Sports Academy, 16708 South Park Drive, Westfield.

The two-day event (Saturday, Dec. 7 and Sunday, Dec. 8) includes two unique archery rounds. Day one features a traditional National Field Archery Association (NFAA) indoor target round of 60 arrows. The second day features a multi-color target used for the Las Vegas round and 30 arrows. A total score of letes and spectators.

ing archers in each class designation. The event is family-friendly and open to spectators at no cost.

The Hoosier 690 Pro/ Am attracts novice to professional archers of all ages, both men and women, across the United States. This event is hosted by the IFAA and sanctioned by the NFAA.

Individuals of all ages and skill levels can compete in the same event, providing a unique experience for ath-the Borg-Warner Trophy on Dec. 4 in Indianapolis, one of the most significant honors since he won his second Indy 500 on May 26 at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Newgarden, a native of Nashville, Tennessee, earned his second victory in "The Greatest Spectacle in Racing" in the No. 2 Shell Powering Progress Team Penske Chevrolet. This was the 20th Indy 500 victory for Team Penske, and Newgarden is the first backto-back winner since Helio Castroneves won his second Indy 500 while driving for Team Penske in 2002.

The unveiling ceremony took place at COhatch Polk Stables, a coworking space for entrepreneurs and startups located in downtown Indianapolis.

The bas-relief, sterling silver image of Newgarden is the 111th face to be affixed to the iconic trophy, awarded annually to the winner of the Indianapolis 500 since 1936.

"Having my face added to the Borg-Warner Trophy is one of the coolest parts about winning the race," Newgarden said. "Seeing the finished product, with two side-by-side images of my face, is an unbelievable honor, and I look forward to hopefully adding a third likeness to the row after this year's Indy 500."

Renowned sculptor Will is unique, even for a backto-back winner like Newgarden. Behrends starts from scratch each year and begins his creative process by studying a series of 360-degree photos of the winner to get a baseline for sculpting before constructing a full-scale model of the driver's face. Normally a driver would visit Behrends' studio in Tryon, North Carolina, for an in-person session. This year's visit was impacted by Hurricane Helene, so Newgarden and Behrends met virtually to make the final adjustments to the full-scale model.

This life-size clay version is used as reference for Behrends to construct the smaller model, a piece created out of a mixture of oil-based clay. The smaller clay model is turned into a mold and cast in wax before being sent to a jeweler to be transformed into sterling silver. Behrends completes his process by polishing and buffing the sculpture before attaching it to the trophy.

"Today is a special day for Josef and BorgWarner," said Michelle Collins, global director marketing and public relations for BorgWarner. "Josef is one of only six drivers to win back-to-back Indianapolis 500 victories in the race's 113-year history, and unveiling his face on this spectacular trophy cements his mark not only in INDY-CAR, but all of motorsports. BorgWarner is honored to uphold the tradition of the Borg-Warner Trophy and celebrate Josef's historic 2024 Indianapolis 500 win."

Originally designed in 1935, the sterling silver trophy measures over 5 feet, 4-3/4 inches tall and weighs more than 110 pounds as it

Early next year, Newgarden will receive his BorgWarner Championships Driver's Trophy, also known as a "Baby Borg," a miniature replica of the Borg-Warner large-scale Trophy.
