January care package drive for local Vets was a huge success

Submitted

Editor's note: This story was written by Hamilton County Veterans Corp. Secretary Treasurer Lynn Epperson, Auxiliary 2nd Vice President Tracy Huser, and Bill Doss of the Stronger Veterans Stronger Communities Coalition.

The time-honored tradition of sending care packages to our deployed troops continued as 2025 started here in Hamilton County.

On Saturday, Jan. 25 at the Lowell Beaver American Legion Post 470 in Fishers, 35 volunteers young and old gathered to pack up an incredible 147 care packages for our recently deployed Indiana National Guard's 38th ID unit. On Sept. 25, 2024, 600 citizen soldiers deployed in support of Operation Spartan Shield to the Middle East from Camp Atterbury. They are scheduled to be deployed for at least one year.

Silence isn't always golden

Most of us have heard the saying "silence is golden," meaning it is often better or more respectful to remain silent than to speak. The full saying is "speech is silver, silence is golden."

While that may very well be true in some cases, when it comes to silence and having my needs met as a person with a disability, this statement is untrue. In fact, it is better to speak up and voice my needs as someone who has needs that have to be met to keep me safe or make an experience as successful as possible for me.

A longtime friend recently reminded me how I used to "mask" my disability in middle and high school, and even into college. The last thing I wanted to do was draw attention to myself at that age, especially if I felt like I was putting someone out to get a need met. Often, I chose to silently suffer because I was too shy, too afraid, or not educated enough to know that it was okay to speak up for myself and what I needed as a young, disabled girl. To be honest, it was mostly because I did not want to be any more different from my peers than I already was. Blending in was the goal then, not standing out.

Class 101: help for future college students

By MELBA KISER For The Reporter

During the 2024 legislative session, the Indiana legislature revamped the requirements for a high school diploma.

The new diploma+ program has three tracks depending on whether the focus is on college enrollment, employment, or enlistment. The legislature has set the effective dates as the 2028/2029 school year, meaning that students entering the eighth grade in 2025 who are thinking about college will be the first ones impacted by the changes. School counselors and teachers will be grappling with the changes and new requirements. The average student-to-school-counselor ratio is high.

Class 101 advisors can bridge the gap, providing the one-on-one support the student needs.

Class 101 was started in 1997 in Lexington, Ky. Today they are the nation's largest college planning company with over 40 locations in 23 states, primarily on the east coast and part of the Midwest. Their focus is helping parents and students ensure their college preparation is well executed. The company provides more than 10 different services, including identifying career interests and exploring majors, assessment of strengths and personality profile, essay writing, resume building, ACT/ SAT test preparation and score improvement, scholarship applications, completing FAFSA/financial aid forms, finding job shadowing opportunities, obtaining letters of recommendation, and admission interview coaching.

The engagement with students can start as early as eighth grade. The earlier students engage, the more guidance the advisors can offer with course selection. However, Class 101 does work with students who are entering the 12th grade. Depending on the grade of the student, Class 101 asks for one hour per week every four to six weeks for eighth graders, which increases to one hour per week every one to two weeks for a junior.

Local Class 101 offices are open for students to use as often as they wish, with the Carmel office seeing several students taking advantage of the facility from Monday to Friday between the hours of 4 and 9 p.m.

Using Class 101's methods, a student can expect to see a 160- to 170-point increase in their SAT scores and a 0.3- to 0.55-point increase in grade-point average. Class 101 advisors will help students zero-in on qualities and characteristics that will make them stand out. Parents can get help finding favorable student loans, financial aid programs, merit-based scholarship applications, etc., that will lead to a reduction in college costs.

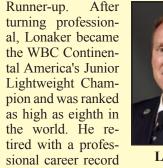

Students and parents who want more details can contact Class 101 at (317) 975-1012. Class 101 is located at 600 E. Carmel Drive, Suite 109, Carmel.

(LTC) Cliff Pappe TF Spartan Chaplain 38th ID Command Chaplain overseas, orchestrated a care package drive for our 600 deployed Hoosiers. We approached all five Hamilton County American Legions and both of our VFW Posts to assist in this great event. The American Legion Post 470 donated $1,500 and their Auxiliary donated another $500, which were used to purchase the bulk of the items in the care packages. American Legion Post 67 in Sheridan donated items and $100 to cover shipping costs. Donations of supplies also came from the American Legion Post 155 in Carmel and Cicero Memorial Post 341.

This event was such a huge success thanks in large part to Commander Pat Menc and Auxiliary Officer Tracy Huser with the Fishers American Legion 470 who hosted the event. Cliff Moran from American Legion Post 360 helped organize the tables of supplies, pack boxes, and transport them for shipping.

Thank you to everyone who made this event possible, from donating goods to helping pack the boxes. The American Legion Posts in Fishers and Sheridan donated funds to help cover the cost of shipping the care packages. Each large box costs $25 to ship via USPS. Hamilton County Veterans Corp. will cover the bulk of the $3,682 in shipping costs.

Because the drive was so successful, we will hold another even larger care package drive for our troops. This one will be for a "Christmas in June." We plan to gather collections Feb. 12 through May 10. The collected items will then be wrapped and shipped at the end of May. Suggested items requested by those deployed include card games (Phase 10, Uno, etc.), puzzles, small boxes of Keurig cups, graphic T-shirts for both men and women (sizes small to XXXL), water bottles, throw blankets, and decorations (Christmas lights, signs, banners – people love to decorate their living quarters or office space).

We are again asking all seven Hamilton County VFW and American Legion Posts to help collect the unwrapped gifts and bring them to the Fishers Lowell Beaver American Legion Post 470, 9091 E. 126th St., Fishers, by May 10 for the wrapping and packaging party that will start there at 5 p.m.

SILENCE -

My high school had an sometimes I still try to avoid elevator which I had to use after having a surgery. I also had permission to have someone leave class with me early to allow extra time to get to class and avoid crowded hallways of students unfamiliar with dodging a wheelchair. However, when I was not recovering from a surgery, using that elevator was the last thing I wanted to do. I chose to do things the hard way and very slowly make my way up the crowded stairways. I always hated that feeling of people effortlessly climbing the stairs all around me. We had exactly seven minutes to get to our lockers and get stuff for the next class. That was sometimes a challenge depending on the distance between classes, but it is what I chose to do.

Looking back, that seems silly to me. Unless I was forced to ask for accommodations, I was going to avoid it, even if it meant my life was more difficult and internally stressful.

I did it in my work life. too. For a long time, I never told my boss that I had to crawl up my clients' stairs if they did not have a railing at their home during my hundreds of home visits over the years in social services. I just kept doing it, each time being horribly stressed out and humiliated. It is impossible to come across as to post at your Post or in confident and capable when you are meeting your client or parents of a client when on your hands and knees, if they happened open the door up before I was able to get back up. Some were horrified, others compassionate. I did this for years and years. Why? I did not want to cause a fuss.

> Even now, I often find myself staying quiet when I should be speaking up for an accommodation that I need in a certain situation. It is hard to ask for things when you do not know if you will be met with a kind attitude or a hateful one. I have gotten better at it, but

That certainly would not be my advice to a younger person asking me. I would tell them to absolutely speak up for their needs, boldly and confidently. Why? Because as human beings we should all have the same access to what society has to offer. It is absurd to think that because someone is disabled, they would not be given the same opportunities as a non-disabled person, but it is not at all uncommon. Living with a disability can be difficult without the added stress of constantly fighting for simple accommodations like access to a restaurant, theatre, airplane, restroom, tourist attraction etc.

In my role as the National Ambassador for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, publicly sharing my story helped me to grow in confidence tremendously. Each time I shared my story with an audience, I felt more empowered to voice my needs as a disabled woman.

Even though I am not perfect at speaking up for my needs, especially when I feel like I am putting someone out, or changing someone else's experience, I am getting better at using my voice. How could I have expected my family, friends, or teachers to know what I needed when I was not saying a word? I could not. That is just part of my life's reality. I do have to explain my needs and often follow up with a story about why.

Silence is not always golden. If you have the need to speak up for yourself, then humbly courageously do so, even if it feels like there are people who would rather you not.

Until next time ...

Two Indiana mayors from opposing parties told lawmakers a more targeted approach to property tax reform could head off significant cuts, especially to public safety.

Six days after Gov. Mike Braun pushed for property tax reform in his State of the State address.

lawmakers held their first hearing on his plan on Tuesday

In its current form, the measure would allow homeowners to either file for a 60 percent homestead deduction or have their tax bill reset to 2021 levels. It also would require property tax referendum votes to occur during general elections in even-numbered years, when voter turnout is higher for presidential and midterm elections.

Property tax rates skyrocketed following the pandemic. Braun's team shared data with the Senate Tax and Fiscal Policy Committee which showed that property taxes spiked by 5.6 percent for taxes paid in 2021, then another 49 percent for 2022 and 10.2 percent in 2023. Taxes paid for the years 2024 and 2025 will net homeowners back-to-back increases of 7.1 percent each year.

Those numbers carry real-world consequences. While lawmakers took testimony on the plan upstairs, Braun hosted two homeowners for a fireside chat in his office. Indianapolis resident Jennie Reith said her property taxes went up by $1,200 over the past four years, while Franklin resident Mark Gross said he pays at least $1,000 a year more now than in 2021.

"In the city of Terre Haute, we are already reducing our total amount of personnel," he said. "What's abundantly important here is, when you have the conversation around taxation, it's important to also say, well, folks, you get what you pay for."

Finkam said Carmel already has one of the lowest tax rates in the state. She said her city would lose $26 million next year, more than one-fourth of Carmel's general fund revenue. As an example of the city's uses for property tax revenue. she said Carmel already has two fewer fire stations than it needs to provide adequate fire protection and the city council just voted Monday night to add another ambulance on the city's west side.

"It's how do we do that and still maintain the services that people deserve and expect and frankly have been invested in for years," she said.

During his testimony, Sakbun noted 40 percent of the people who live in Terre Haute are renters rather than homeowners and said the property tax conversation should include them as well. Braun said while he's open to that, homeowners have borne the brunt of the increase in property taxes over the past four years and so are in the greatest need of relief.

Braun said he's open to conversations with local government leaders like Finkam and Sakbun on how to implement his plan in a way that minimizes impact "Literally one day a to services. He said local month, my paycheck goes governments are nearly always run more efficiently

Announces major new corporate & lifestyle investments

The REPORTER

Fishers Mayor Scott al State of the City address Wednesday, announcing major new corporate and lifestyle investments and marking a decade of service as the city's first mayor.

Fadness highlighted Fishers' rapid growth over the past decade and the community's transformation from a small suburb to a major regional destination and fourth-largest city in the state. In addition to the accelerated population growth, the mayor cited the city's expanding infrastructure and lifestyle amenities over the past 10 years, referencing the 61 percent increase in park acreage, $135 million investment in parks and trails, roadway improvements such as the 106th Street interchange and State Road 37 project, and new community amenities like the Fishers Event Center, Nickel Plate Trail, and upcoming Fishers Community Center.

Fadness also announced a lineup of major new investments that will bring new jobs and lifestyle amenities to the community. These investments include:

• New investments from life science companies: NCOG BioPharma Services has committed approximately $280 million to build out its Fishers site along Fishers' Life Sciences & Innovation Corridor. The company plans to add nearly 100 new employees by the end of the year and another 100 in 2026, along with adding a third filling line and 114,000 squarefoot building to their site. Stevanato Group, located the urban farm experience & Innovation Park, is also expanding with new jobs and capabilities with its manufacturing operations. This includes manufacturing drug delivery devices and the addition of research and development activities at its Fishers location. By 2032, the company plans to have 700 employees with an average salary of $70,000. Combined, IN-COG and Stevanato bring a total investment of more than $1.2 billion and 1,665 new jobs to Fishers.

• Plug and Play partners with Launch Fishers: Plug and Play, a platform that connects startups to corporations, venture capital firms, universities and government agencies, has partnered with Launch Fishers to bring business connections and resources straight to Launch companies. Plug and Play is headquartered in Silicon Valley and has a presence in more than 50 locations across five continents. Costs of "success" in America are addressed on stage in Red Speedo

By ADAM CROWE A Seat on the Aisle

My theatrical 2025 has started with another production of American Lives Theatre (ALT). I'm a fan of their choices, and wasn't disappointed by their current production of Red Speedo by Lucas Hnath. Hnath gained attention and awards for his plays A Doll's House Part 2 and The Christians.

Red Speedo begins with a flurry of exposition by the excellent Alex Oberheid as pleted by Paige Elisse as Lydia, Ray's former girlfriend. The cast is uniformly good. Over 85 (intermission-free) minutes, these characters each take a turn asking about the costs of "success" in America and how outside forces may sometimes make decisions for us.

A friend recently reviewed a local musical and wrote about the concept of the "I Want" song. As a part of the structure of a musical, one or more characters will sing about their wants and dreams to move the story and tell us more about a character. Red Speedo features a cacophony of such sentiments, though not in song. None of the characters seem too concerned that their particular "want" will seriously affect the others.

Braun's plan carries a stiff price tag. The state's budget writers estimate local governments could lose a combined total of more than $1 billion next year and in each year following. State budget writers released estimates for every single township, city and county in the state, along with school corporations and special taxing districts. IMPD could lose $4.2 million next year if the bill passes in its current form. Greenfield-Central Schools would lose $2.9 million. The Monroe County Public Library would lose about $900,000. All of those figures go up in the years that follow.

Carmel Mayor Sue Finkam, a Republican, and Terre Haute Mayor Brandon Sakbun, a Democrat, told lawmakers their cities would have to cut essential than state government, but that doesn't mean there's no room for cities and counties to find additional savings.

"This is an issue about listening to the taxpayers – some of them now feel that they may not be able to keep their home – and listening to the folks that we all want to be healthy and survive," Braun said, adding he wants to make sure local governments weren't simply taking advantage of a tax revenue windfall.

There was no committee vote Tuesday. Bill author Sen. Travis Holdman, R-Markle, said he plans to file an amendment based on feedback from Tuesday's hearing, with a possible committee vote coming next week.

Shelby Materials named 2024 IRMCA Producer of the Year

The REPORTER

On Tuesday, the Indiana Ready Mixed Concrete Association (IRMCA) announced Shelby Materials as the recipient of the 2024 IRMCA Producer of the Year Award, recognizing the company's exceptional involvement and contributions to the association and the concrete industry throughout the past year.

Shelby Materials, a leading ready-mixed concrete producer in central Indiana, has demonstrated unparalleled dedication to the IRMCA's mission by actively participating in events, advocating for industry advancements, and collaborating with peers to foster a stronger, more sustainable concrete industry in the state.

"We're incredibly honored to receive the IRM-CA Producer of the Year Award," said Shelby Materials President Matt Haehl. "Our involvement with the IRMCA has been a key priority for us, and we're proud to support the association's efforts to promote safety, sustainability, and innovation across the industry. This award is a testament to the hard work of our team and our shared vision with the IRMCA."

Producers like Shelby Materials play a crucial role in the growth and success of the IRMCA by getting involved in various committees, attending industry events, and supporting initiatives that advance the association's goals. Their contributions help shape the future of the industry and ensure the IRMCA's continued leadership in promoting safety, innovation, and sustainability within Indiana's ready-mixed concrete sector.

"Shelby Materials has long been a key player in advancing the standards of the ready-mixed concrete industry in Indiana," IRMCA Executive Director Chad Montgomery said. "Matt and his entire team have shown a dedication to innovation and environmental responsibility, and are continuous key contributors when the IRMCA needs assistance to further the industry for producers across Indiana. They are more than deserving of this recognition as the 2024 Producer of the Year."

With headquarters in Shelbyville, Ind., Shelby Materials is in its seventh decade, having grown to 12 locations with more than 225 employees. Shelby Materials has a location in Westfield at 18050 Mule Bard Road. For more information on Shelby Materials, visit shelbymaterials.com.

Carmel provides update on College Avenue roundabout to prestigious early career

The REPORTER

Beginning on or after March 17, Carmel will begin constructing a roundabout at the intersection of East 96th Street and North College Avenue. This project will require a full closure of the intersection for approximately 60 days.

In addition to the improveroundabout, ments will take place along North College Avenue from East 96th Street to East 104th Street during the next 12 months. These upgrades will include utility coordination, enhanced pedestrian connectivity (such as multi-use paths), and the installation of additional roundabouts at Pennsylvania Parkway and Parkwood Crossing. Landscaping will also be added along North College Avenue.

Obituaries

Cathy Sue Stowe (Wallace) July 27, 1954 – January 24, 2025

Cathy Sue Stowe (Wallace), a beloved mother, (great) grandmother, sister, cousin, aunt, and friend, passed away peacefully on Friday, January 24, 2025, surrounded by the love of her family. She was 70 years old.

Born on July 27, 1954, in Noblesville, Cathy was the youngest daughter of Lloyd and Mary Catherine (Hines) Wallace. She grew up in Sheridan and was a 1972 graduate of Sheridan High School. As an adult she lived in various cities including Sheridan, Indianapolis, Nashville, Tenn., Kokomo, Ind.; and most recently Huntsville, Ala. Her greatest pride was her family.

Cathy's faith was a cornerstone of her life. She was a devoted Christian who found comfort and strength in her relationship with God. She often offered prayers and words of encouragement to those in need. Her unwavering belief in God's grace guided her through life's challenges and inspired those around her. Cathy had a passion for taking care of her lawn, crafting, reading, traveling, music and movies, and had a deep love for her family and pets.

She was a devoted mother to Cristina (Eric) Huprich, Adrienne Pickett, Thomas (Sheana) Stowe, and Heather (Jacob) Johnson; a loving grandmother to Sarah (Kayla) Bennett, Nicholas Carter, Cora Stowe, Shawn Stowe-Vines, Tobin Johnson, Avery Stowe, Olliver Johnson, Jesse Stowe, Imogen Johnson, and Emily Stowe; and a proud great-grandmother to Noah Bennett.

She is also survived by her siblings, Vance Wallace, Keith (Nancy) Wallace, and Peggy Robinson; as well as cousins, nieces, and nephews.

She is reunited in eternal peace with her parents, Lloyd and Mary Catherine (Hines) Wallace; her brother, James Wallace; sister-in-law, Susie Wallace; and many others, including her beloved dogs, Tyke and Robbie.

Her family finds solace in knowing that she is now in the presence of her Savior, embraced by eternal light and love.

A celebration of Cathy's life will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, February 8, 2025, at Kercheval Funeral Home, 306 E. 10th St., Sheridan, with visitation from 11 a.m. until the time of service. Burial will follow at Spencer Cemetery in Sheridan.

Cathy will be remembered for her boundless love, steadfast faith, and the countless lives she touched. She will be deeply missed but forever cherished in our hearts.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be presented to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Condolences: kerchevalfuneralhome.com

Judith Diane (Blew) Ramey September 16, 1945 – January 27, 2025

Judith Diane (Blew) Ramey, beloved wife, mother, grandmother, sister, and friend, passed away peacefully on January 27, 2025, at the age of 79. Born on September 16, 1945, in Fort Wayne, Ind., to Betty (Wilson) Blew and Ora Blew, Judi lived a life full of love, service, and dedication to those she held dear.

Judi leaves behind a legacy of fierce love and unwavering support for her family and friends. She is survived by her loving husband of 57 years, Robert; her children, Eric Ramey and Damara (Ramey) Mitchell; and her cherished grandchildren, Jacob, Tyler, Raymee, Jonah, Brody, Lydia Diane, and Morgan (predeceased). She is also remembered by her siblings, Donna Hammel, Gary Blew, Michael Blew, and Gwendolyn (Blew) Rice.

From a young age, Judi's heart was captivated by music and travel. She had an innate curiosity about the world and a passion for exploring its beauty, which she loved to share with others by organizing meaningful trips. Whether researching destinations or writing about new places to discover, Judi's love of travel knew no bounds. Her most cherished moments were when she could create lasting memories for others through her thoughtful travel plans.

Judi's compassion extended beyond her family. She devoted much of her life to serving others. Her time as a Stephen Minister and Grief Share teacher gave her the opportunity to walk alongside those experiencing some of life's hardest moments, offering support, prayer, and encouragement. Judi's faith was a central part of her life, and she was a prayer warrior who believed deeply in the power of God and her savior Jesus Christ.

A lover of music, Judi studied opera at Ball State University and helped establish the radio station WQME at Anderson University. She found joy singing with the "Sweet Adelines" during her time in Tehran, Iran, with her young family. In addition to her musical pursuits, Judi worked at the Indiana State School for the Deaf.

Judi was known for her vibrant personality, her ability to listen and encourage, and her deep love for God. She was outgoing, passionate, and truly a champion for her family. She fought bravely through many health battles over the last 25 years, always with the mantra, "It's worth the fight and God is good."

A memorial service to celebrate Judi's life will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, February 12 at Church At The Crossing, 9111 Haverstick Road, Indianapolis. All who knew and loved Judi are invited to join in honoring her memory.

Judi's legacy of love, service, and joy will continue to inspire all who were blessed to know her. She will be deeply missed, but her spirit will live on in the hearts of her family and in the countless lives she touched.

Two Rocks ready to join Ball State football team

The REPORTER

Two Westfield football stars are among the 12 new student-athlete football players that will join the Ball State Cardinals program in 2025.

Gabe Aramboles and Mikeah Webster will be incoming freshmen at Ball State this fall. Both players helped the Shamrocks to a 12-2 record and a state final-6A state tournament.

Aramboles, at 6-0 and 196 pounds, played both wide receiver and defensive back. He signs with Ball State classified as an "Athlete" and caught 38 passes for 548 yards and five touchdowns, despite being injured late in his senior campaign. Aramboles played in 10 games and led the Shamrocks with 54.8

ist finish in the IHSAA Class receiving yards per game. He All-State honors in 2023 and was named to the Reporter's All-County second team and to the 2024 IndyStar football preseason Super Team at wide receiver.

> Webster, a 6-1 and 230-pound linebacker, was a force on both sides of the ball for the Shamrocks, scoring a combined 11 touchdowns in his career and logging 280 total tackles. He earned IFCA 2024 and was named to the Reporter's All-County First Team and the IndyStar's 2024 football Super Team. Webster earned a three-star rating from 247Sports and was ranked the sixth-best linebacker in Indiana in the class of 2025. Mikeah Webster is the younger brother of Ball State redshirt junior Maximus Webster.

Noblesville's Aiden Reynolds commits to play IU baseball

By PHIL SANCHEZ WISH-TV | wishtv.com

A total of 15,000.

That's how many swings that Noblesville's Aiden Reynolds took during the offseason when he was just 11 years old. That was the same offseason where he started taking baseball more seriously.

Clearly, it's paid off as Reynolds, a 2026 grad, has committed to play baseball at Indiana University.

"They want what's best for me and my family," Reynolds said about the coaching staff at Indiana. "Some coaches at other schools only cared about baseball and that's not what I was looking for in a school, I wanted a place that cared about me and my family because that's something that I value."

It's also something that his coach at Noblesville values, too. Reynolds said he was in middle school when he first met Noblesville Head Coach Justin Keever. However, Reynolds remembers Keever coming to watch him play when he was playing Babe Ruth ball.

"He would always come This story originally out and watch me play, never talked much at that time, wishtv.com/sports/highbut, in middle school, talked school-the-zone/noble-reynto one of my classes and that olds-indiana-universiwas the first time I ever met ty-baseball-commitment.

him. He's great, big family guy. He always talks about that, we are a family, we do things together, and I love that."

Reynolds, an infielder, is the ninth-ranked player in the state for the class of 2026. He said that he would love to help the Noblesville Millers win state this season.

"We have a lot of players returning from last year so we would love to go undefeated in our conference, I don't think that's been done for a while."

Reynolds who plays travel ball with the Indiana Bulls during the summer and trains out of Pro-X in Westfield said that he owes everything to his family, especially his mom, Shantel and dad, Scott.

"She's the emotional support, she may not everything that's happening on the baseball field but she's the most supportive person." Reynolds said about his mom.

As far as his dad goes, Reynolds points to those 15,000 swings and more.

"He's taught me everything, he's found coaches for me, he pays for everything, I owe everything to him."

Huskies shoot to win big over KIPP Indy Legacy

The REPORTER

A red-hot shooting night from Hamilton Heights' Gavin Saunders – and for that matter, the entire Huskies' team - turned into a huge Wednesday win.

Heights rolled past KIPP Indy Legacy 97-53 in a home game. The Pride came into the Huskies' gym with a 10-4 record, but Heights dominated this game, scoring at least 21 points in each quarter of its Senior Night game.

Indy Allstars merges with Select Athletics, creating Indy Select

The REPORTER

Select Athletics, a leading youth sports organization, has launched a new division, Indy Select. This expansion brings the organization's high-quality programming to the central Indiana area, furthering its commitment to youth athlete development.

The cornerstone of this new division is the integration of the Indy Allstars 7-on-7 program into the Select Athletics family. Indy Allstars, a rising star in the 7-on-7 football scene operating out of Fishers, has quickly gained recognition for its exceptional training and zation," Select Athletics President Erica Raisor said. This move aligns perfectly with our mission to provide top-tier athletic opportunities to youth across the country."

Indy Allstars Director William Dabner expressed enthusiasm about the merger.

"The alignment with Select Athletics will give us the resources to continue to expand our program to serve more youth in the central Indiana area."

The Indy Select division aims to deliver the same high-quality programming that Select Athletics is known for, now tailored to meet the specific needs of central In-
