Primrose promotes Project Linus with 19 fleece blankets

Staff at the Primrose School of Noblesville spent a portion of their in-service training day on Monday giving back to children of Hamilton County. The teachers spend their work days teaching the littlest learners, but they were excited to have the opportunity to help children in other ways, too. The Primrose team created 19 no-sew fleece blankets that will be given to the Hamilton County chapter of Project Linus. Project Linus provides these blankets to hospitals, shelters, social service agencies, or anywhere a child might be in need of a big hug.

Political history made in Sheridan

Submitted by Steve Martin

A new political history is being made in Sheridan beginning this year.

Back in November, voters in Adams Township and the Town of Sheridan voted and agreed to consolidate, do away with township government, and become the new Town of Sheridan.

This consolidation includes a new seven-member town council, an increase of two members over the previous five-member Sheridan Town Council. The two new members of the council were appointed from the old Adams Township Advisory Board, and now the new Sheridan Town Council members represent the consolidated former Adams Township and Town of Sheridan territories.

While the two new members of the Sheridan Town Council were appointed, future

The Great Escape

This story ends with flashing cop lights and a pond.

It starts with my family and I enjoying a leisurely Saturday morning.

A bagel and muffin sounded good, so I offered to pick them up while everyone else stayed home in their pajamas. Before I left, I let our dogs, Lucy and Elsa, outside in the backyard to romp and play for a bit. I left and returned about a half hour later. As we sat down to enjoy our breakfast, I noticed I did not see either dog in the backyard.

You can already see where this story is going at this point.

I asked my husband if he brought the dogs back inside. He tells me no and from there, chaos erupts. We both go into the backyard and start shouting for the dogs. We yell at the kids and ask if they brought them inside, desperately hoping that perhaps one of the kids let them in and maybe they snuck upstairs. We start to scramble while looking for them. We go back into the backyard and see the place in the fence that was weakened from the previous day's storm and where they got out.

At this point, I'm panicking. I don't even know where to begin. My mind is racing with wondering how long they've been out, how far they could have gotten, did they stay together, and God forbid ... what if something happened to them?

Neither of these dogs have any kind of street smarts. They are not savvy to put it mildly. They are couch potatoes that have never had to forage or survive. Their idea of hard knocks is being fed an hour later than normal. They are lazy and spoiled.

Once we realized they were both out, I called my sister. My husband and I split and went in opposite directions. We began on foot and then realized that given the timetable and not knowing how long they'd been out that a car would be more effective. In my hysterics, I can barely tell my sister what is happening and the thought of something happening to them was too much to bear.

I told the kids to stay put and my sister came and sat with them while my brotherin-law joined in the search. He happens to be a Noblesville Police Officer. The three of us were canvassing the neighborhood and surrounding areas, stopping anyone in sight to ask if they had seen two loose dogs. We were told by multiple people that they had been seen together. Each time I asked someone, I was told they had seen them within the last five to 10 minutes. I knew we were on their trail and kept praying that they were OK and not hit or injured. I also kept asking God to keep them together.

After stopping multiple people, I came across a man who said they had just run through his backyard minutes before and told me the direction they headed. I called my husband and brother-in-law. We all start circling the area like vultures.

A man I had stopped along the way to ask if he had seen our dogs saw my husband. He was driving a truck and stopped him and asked if he was looking for the dogs because he had just seen them at the pond. He asked my husband if he wanted to hop into his truck and offered to take him to the spot. My husband didn't even think twice and hopped in.

My husband calls and all he shouts into the phone is that he has them and to our neighborhood. I call my brother-in-law on the way and tell him where to head. Neither dog had a leash or collar on. I get to my husband within minutes and look across the pond to see him in his pajamas and trying to manage the two unleashed dogs on his own. My brother-in-law gets there in no time, and between the two of them, we get the soaking wet dogs loaded into the car. I called my sister to tell her that we found them and are headed home. My brother-in-law stopped traffic with his cop lights on as we got the dogs loaded in the car. My husband and I were soaking wet as the dogs enjoyed their rendezvous in the pond. I was distraught. I was so upset and grateful that they were both safe and stayed together. I couldn't bear the thought of only getting one of them back.

After having time to reflect on this situation, I was struck by the kindness of strangers and neighbors check our fence after wind along the way. I remember the group of boys playing football who stopped to talk to me when I was crying and couldn't find them. The sweetest boy took my number down and told me he would ride his bike around the neighborhood get down to the retention to help look for them. The pond, down the street from complete stranger who got into his truck to start looking and then offered my husband a ride. There was another woman who began walking the neighborhood after I asked her if she had seen them. There was another neighbor who started a group text with photos of the dogs and a "be on the lookout:" There were posts to Next Door and Facebook.

What I realize is that nothing unites people quite like a love of animals. If you had told me that my husband would be in his pajamas in a stranger's truck that morning, I would have said no way. That day was a great reminder to me that there are a lot of good people out there. With all of the divisions in the world, it was a good reminder that most people are inherently good. The media just likes to highlight the bad ones and divisions, but when you get out and talk to your own neighbors, you realize that it's not the case.

It was also a reminder to damage. As for Lucy and Elsa, they thought their great escape was their most exciting adventure yet and would do the same thing tomorrow if given the opportunity.

Boards continues its promising 2024-25 season with Jersey Boys, the hit musical about the formastruggles, and successes of Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons. Having grown up with an admiration for that group, I was looking forward to finally seeing this show – I was not disappointed.

Jersey Boys came to Broadway in 2005, winning a Tony Award as Best Musical in 2006. The show ran for over a decade, ending in 2017 before reopening a few months later at an off-Broadway venue. It features a unique – for that time - biographical format, presented in a documentary style with each of the four band members telling a part of the band's story. The book was written by Marshall Brickman and Rick Elice after they had conducted interviews with the principals.

B&B's production is directed by Candi Boyd, a former cast member of the show both on Broadway and understanding of the subject matter shines through allowing the flow of the story to be both well developed and lively.

Gian Raffaele DiCostanzo stars as Frankie Valli with an astonishing performance.

His portraval of the singer goes beyond his impressive Valli-like vocal talent. DiCostanzo brings a range of polished acting skills to the role as well. Transforming from a youthful and talented innocent to a polished performer, his previous experience in the role (this being his ninth production) makes his efforts here quite noteworthy.

Joining him as Four Seasons members are a mix of familiar and new faces. Kyle Southern returns to B&B as a feisty Tommy DeVito and B&B regular Logan Moore impresses as bass player, Nick Massi. Making his Beef & Boards debut is Nikita Burshteyn as gifted song writer, Bob

The entire cast elevates the storytelling with outstanding performances of the over 30 musical numbers that display the growth and progression of the famous vocal group.

Bottom line: B&B's production of Jersey Boys is a pleasure to see on many levels - not only from the striking nostalgia of hearing so many favorite songs from the past, but also to see the tale of these performers' efforts to succeed. Top that with the sparkling portrayals and performances, and this is a show not to miss. Highly recommended!

Letter to the Editor

Shaffer applauds Finkam's tax reform approach, questions ongoing borrowing

Dear Editor:

Carmel mayor Sue Finkam's letter ("Protecting Carmel taxpayers," published Feb. 15) precisely stated the city's position on property tax reductions

The mayor indicated a responsible, balanced approach to tax reform.

The mayor opined:

"Carmel didn't become one of America's most livable cities by happenstance.

"It has been built by residents and city leaders on bold leadership, smart planning and a relentless pursuit of excellence.

She omitted:

· Carmel has a $1.6 billion debt and no articulated plan to get out from under it.

· Carmel has tapped out its traditional growth in property taxes as population stagnates and the most recent property tax revenues to the city (2023 annual financial report) show an actual decline in revenue ($46.6 million in 2022 and $45.6 million in 2023).

• City spending totaled $505 million in the most recent year reported – most of which came from borrowing, not tax revenues.

In short, Carmel's financial situation is compromised by borrowing and spending, not faulty revenue

Like her Federal counterparts, the mayor needs first to cut spending and pay down debt, then worry about revenues.

Indiana House bill to annex Illinois counties advances from committee

By GARRETT BERGQUIST citing Indiana's WISH-TV | wishtv.com

House Speaker Todd want to see our Huston on Monday said Indiana should respond to votes by nearly a third of Illinois counties in favor of secession from that state. A bipartisan House committee vote Monday morning advanced a bill to set up a bi-state commission to redraw the border between Indiana and Illinois. Huston, R-Fishers, told the committee voters in 33 of Illinois' 102 counties have approved ballot measures to explore seceding from that state since 2020, including seven this past November. He said more than 100,000 people have moved to Indiana from Illinois since the COVID-19 pandemic, often lower taxes.

"We don't neighbors to our west languish. Ultimately, their success or failure affects our own success or failure," Huston to change their course. And in the meantime, to the Illinois counties and residents feeling unheard and unrepresented, we hear you and we invite you to come back home again to Indiana."

All of the counties in Illinois that have voted to secede are heavily Republican counties in a state long dominated by Chicago-area Democrats. Rep. Ragen Hatcher, D-Gary, asked event such a commission were set up, long-Democratic Lake Countv would also be given the opportunity to potentially secede from Indiana and join Illinois. Huston said. "But it's up to them replied it could be on the table but Lake County voters would have to decide if they want to deal with Illinois' laws and tax system.

Rep. Chris Campbell, D-West Lafayette, was the only "no" vote in committee. She said the bill only furthers political division in the United States by redrawing state boundaries along party lines.

"There are so many of us who feel the same way

Huston if, in the in our state, that we are not heard, that we are an extremely gerrymandered state," she said. "I'm not ready to disrupt the constitutions that we have created in our states and in our country at this point."

Any attempt to redraw state boundaries ultimately would need approval from both the Indiana and Illinois General Assemblies as well as Congress. Illinois State Rep. Brad Holbrook, a Republican, has filed companion legislation in his state to set up the boundary commission but that bill has not yet been heard in committee.

Gov. Mike Braun signed a proclamation to name this week FFA Week in recognition of all the work the Indiana FFA Organization, agriculture educators and FFA advisors do to cultivate the next generation of agriculturists for the state.

During the week, chapters across the state and nation will host a variety of events to educate, advocate and celebrate the agricultural industry. The Indiana FFA Association also received a Senate Concurrent Resolution > highlighting the impact of the FFA Organization, which is preparing more than 14,000 members in 90 of Indiana's 92 counties for the over 250 unique careers in the food, fiber and natural resource sectors. The resolution was led by Sen. Jean Leising, Senate District 42 and Rep. Michael Aylesworth, House District 11.

FFA members are agriculture's future leaders, future food suppliers, future innovators and more! Whether it is through service projects or community gatherings, FFA Week is a time for FFA members to raise awareness about agricultural education and the role the FFA Organization plays in the development of agriculture's future leaders.

The first National FFA Week was held in 1948, when the National FFA Board of Directors designated a weeklong celebration to recognize George Washington's example and legacy as a leader and farmer. For the past 77 years, FFA members across the country have taken part in agricultural, leadership and service-based activities during National FFA Week.

Orchestra Indiana appoints Yaniv Segal as Conductor & Artistic Director

The REPORTER

Orchestra Indiana in Muncie, Ind., has announced Yaniv Segal as its new Principal Conductor and Artistic Director. Segal, who has extensive experi- ana will feature ence as a conductor, vio- a concert with a linist, actor, and composer, rap artist, perforwill begin Artistic Director mances in city duties immediately and will conduct most of the concerts next season.

Ranging from performing and singing at the Metropolitan Opera and touring in a Broadway show as a child, to composing multiple major works and conducting orchestras across the United States and world, Segal brings his talent and reimagined vision for what orchestra and the arts can do for a community.

"We were looking for a visionary leader, not just a conductor," Orchestra Indiana Board President Bill Reece said. "Someone who not only has the technical skills to conduct an orchestra, but an artist that has the vision and ability to transform what the orchestra experience typically is. Someone who will build on our orchestral foundation and help us evolve into a groundbreaking, broad-based arts organization throughout east central Indiana. Whether it is blending symphony with rap, collaborating with a wide range of creators from mural artists to performance artists, or bringing orchestra back into schools, Yaniv is the ideal person to lead the way. And, of course, he will continue to build on the core excellence of our classical music performances that the Muncie Symphony and Marion Philharmonic have been delivering for over 75 years."

Born from the union of the Muncie Symphony and Marion Philharmonic, Orchestra Indiana aims to enrich communities with innovative concert experiences. 2025, Segal and Indi-Orchestra parks throughout

"Regional orchestras are at a crossroads," Segal said. "Symphonic music and putting on concerts alone isn't enough of a presence any longer. Orchestras have to take more of a meet-thepeople-where-they-are approach now. There's a real opportunity with Orchestra Indiana to shape what an orchestra and the arts look like. My goal is to conduct inspiring concerts while increasing the visibility of the organization and the arts in general. I have lots of ideas and I'm looking forward to seeing what we can experiment with and bring to the community."

In 2013, Segal completed graduate degrees in conducting and composition at the University of Michigan with renowned conducting pedagogue Kenneth Kiesler and MacArthur Award winning composer Bright Sheng, and with support from the Paul and Daisy Soros Fellowship for New Americans.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

So Bezalel, Oholiab and every skilled person to whom the Lord has given skill and ability to know how to carry out all the work of constructing the sanctuary are to do the work just as the Lord has commanded."

Then Moses summoned Bezalel and Oholiab and every skilled person to whom the Lord had given ability and who was willing to come and do the work. They received from Moses all the offerings the Israelites had brought to carry out the work of constructing the sanctuary. And the people continued to bring freewill offerings morning after morning. So all the skilled workers who were doing all the work on the sanctuary left what they were doing and said to Moses, "The people are bringing more than enough for doing the work the Lord commanded to be done."

Then Moses gave an order and they sent this word throughout the camp: "No man or woman is to make anything else as an offering for the sanctuary." And so the people were restrained from bringing more, because what they already had was more than enough to do all the work.

Kelly Ann King

June 22, 1962 – February 14, 2025

Kelly Ann King, born on June 22, 1962, in Noblesville, lived a life filled with love, joy, and a profound sense of compassion. Her soul was as vibrant and colorful as the butterflies she adored, her spirit as steady and reassuring as the lighthouses that fascinated her. A lover of literature, she found solace and adventure in the pages of her favorite authors, Danelle Steel, James Patterson, and Nora Roberts, to name a few. A generous soul, she delighted in the culinary arts, creating new dishes and tasting joy in every bite of her favorite meal, chicken and mac and cheese.

Though Kelly's body was confined, her spirit was boundless. Confined to a bed and wheelchair due to lupus and muscular dystrophy around 2010, she continued to live a life that was smart, loving, and robust. From the daily soap operas and primetime shows she enjoyed, to her love for gardening and her frequent visits to the library, Kelly embraced each day with courage and grace. Her love for family was unparalleled, a beacon of light that shone brightly even on the darkest days. Despite the physical distance, she was a constant presence on Facebook, staying connected with her loved ones and sharing in their lives. She had a soft spot for animals, cherishing the memories of growing up with dogs and later becoming a cat lover, though she had a distinct aversion to snakes.

Kelly will be lovingly remembered by her mother, Georganne King; her sister, Jenifer (Guy Daubenspeck) King; her cousin, James Jr.; and her Uncle Fred King and Aunt Joann King. She is preceded in death by her father, Clair King. Mark Twain once said, "The fear of death follows from the fear of life. A man who lives fully is prepared to die at any time." Kelly lived fully, embracing every moment with a radiant smile, a hearty laugh, and a heart full of love.

Visitation will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Friday, February 21, 2025, at Hartley Funeral Homes, 209 W. Jackson St., Cicero. The Funeral Service will follow at 4 p.m. at Hartley Funeral Home with Pastor Cindy Reynolds officiating.

Let us remember Kelly for the compassionate, loving, smart, and generous soul she was. To honor her memory, we encourage you to share your favorite memories and photos of Kelly on her memorial page. Let's celebrate her life and the joy she brought into ours.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Hartley Funeral Home to help with Kelly's funeral expenses. Condolences: hartleyfuneralhomes.com

Lisa was born on April 25, 1962, in Indianapolis at Methodist Hospital. She graduated from ITT Business School in 1982 and dedicated 40 years of service to Rubin & Levin, where her hard work and commitment left a lasting impact.

Lisa was preceded in death by her ex-husband of 27 years, Brian Dowell, and her father, Kirk Kuykendall. She leaves behind her loving mother, Janet Kuykendall; her cherished daughters, Sarah (Kevin) Hankins and Janelle Anderson; and her adored grandchildren, Kirk Williamson, Gemma Hankins, Valerie Hankins, Josiah Dowell, and Skye Anderson. She is also survived by her siblings, Steve (Kathy) Kuykendall, Karen Gorski, and Jill Lisinski, as well as numerous nieces and nephews.

In the last two years of her life, Lisa found joy and companionship with Mark Light, who stood by her side, bringing her love and happiness.

Lisa lived life to the fullest, embracing her passions, including horseback riding, particularly with AGAPE Therapeutic Riding, country music, traveling, and spending time with her many friends. She was deeply committed to supporting Multiple Sclerosis awareness through various charities, walks, and events and she was a devoted member of Sacred Heart of Jesus Catholic Church.

A private family mass and dinner will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, February 21, at Sacred Heart of Jesus Catholic Church, 410 Pearl St., Cicero. A public visitation will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday, February 22, at Hartley Funeral Home, 209 W. Jackson St., Cicero.

The family requests that any donations be made in Lisa's honor to a Multiple Sclerosis charity or a charity of

Huskies take care of Patriots, 72-64

By RICHIE HALL

sports@readthereporter.com

ARCADIA - Hamilton Heights was up to the tall task of beating Jay County.

The Huskies hosted the Patriots on Tuesday and used a fast start to win 72-64. Heights quickly got a double-digit lead late in the first quarter, then stayed ahead by that margin for most of the game, holding off a late surge by Jay County in the fourth quarter.

It was an important victory for the Huskies, as they are in the same sectional as the Patriots. Both teams compete in Class 3A Sectional 24 at New Castle, which begins in two weeks.

"We didn't want to show all of our hand, because we could play them again," said Heights coach Chad Ballenger. "There's still stuff that we felt like we could do against them, because they play a lot of zone."

Ballenger said the Patriots are talented. "They can shoot it well, they're big," said the coach.

Jay County showed off its height to start the game, as 6-foot-9 junior Cole Forthofer scored the first basket of the game with a layin. That would be the only lead for the Patriots, however, as the Huskies skipped off on a 10-0 run.

Gavin Saunders hit two 3-pointers, with a Tyler Champion basket in between. Rees Knapp finished the run with a jumper, then nailed a triple seconds later to give Heights a 14-3 lead. A steal and basket by Saunders gave the Huskies a double-digit advantage for the first time at 15-4.

Champion made a threepoint play to finish the quarter, with Heights up 22-11. The Huskies kept rolling in the second period, using a 9-0 spurt to lead 33-15. Carson Felger scored four points in that run, including a basket off a steal. Heights picked up 16 steals for the Jack Kakasuleff scored Heights' final points of the half with an and-1, putting the Huskies up 39-19 with 1:08 left. Forthofer scored to make the halftime score 39-21, but Saunders opened the third quarter with a 3. A free throw from Knapp gave Heights 43-21 advantage.

The Huskies' lead stayed around 20 points during the third quarter, which finished with Heights ahead 58-40. Dreydin Serna started a Huskies ahead 69-56. 6-0 run with a basket midway through the period, and Kakasuleff made four free throws to continue the spurt.

Weaver signs to play football for Manchester University

The REPORTER

Hamilton Heights senior Keaton Weaver signed a letter of intent to play football for Manchester University in North Manchester, Ind., this fall. Manchester University is a member of the Heartland Conference and a NCAA Division III athletic institution. He is the son of Ryan Weaver and Michelle Derrer.

Weaver cnose Manchester University because of its beautiful campus and the football coaches. It offers a good environmental studies program and is a place where he can play football at the collegiate level and work toward his long-term goal of becoming a pilot.

Weaver, who earned the Iron Husky Award, has held a lifelong love of football. He became passionate about the sport in the sixth grade when training with Coach Morelli at X-Factor QB Academy and has been going there ever since. When Weaver is not studying, training, or on the field, he can be found working at Pebble Brook Golf Club.

"Keaton was a two-year starter for us as a wide receiver," Hamilton Heights Head Football Coach Jon Kirschner said. "His quickness, dynamic route running, and breakaway speed made him a dangerous threat on the outside for us the past two seasons. His athletic ability allowed him to be able to turn a five-yard catch into a touchdown. He has given everything to Husky football the past four years. I believe his hard work and dedication to Husky football will pay off for him in the coming years at Manchester. I wish him nothing but the best at
