Gleaners & Feeding Team: the Batman & Robin of fighting hunger

By MARK HALL
For The Reporter

The Feeding Team, in conjunction with Gleaners Food Bank, has relaunched drive-through food pickup events in Hamilton County.

On July 22, more than 30 volunteers from The Feeding Team and the Noblesville and Westfield Lions clubs served 150 families at Harbour Shores Church. Families from Hamilton and Madison counties picked up thousands of meals as they pulled into a serving line and volunteers placed groceries in their vehicles. Cars began lining up about an hour before serving began and continued until the last car pulled in shortly before serving ended at 6 p.m.

Worth noting is that neighbors may remain completely anonymous if they wish; however, we do ask for your county and number of families served to measure impact and provide feedback to interested parties.

Drive-through events feature fresh produce, meat, and fruit, along with non-perishable food items. The July 22 event featured frozen beef and turkey in one-pound packages along with frozen fish, chicken drumsticks, cherries, celery, yogurt, both instant and five-pound bags of potatoes, along with canned fruit and vegetables.

It's because of the hard work from volunteers like these that The Feeding Team can provide much-needed food to countless families in Hamilton County and beyond.

Events are planned, weather permitting, the second Saturday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon at Hamilton Heights High School, 25802 State Road 19, Arcadia, and the fourth Tuesday of each month from 4 to 6 p.m. at Harbour Shores Church, 8011 E. 216th St., Cicero.

Feeding Team drive-through food distribution events are designed to compliment the 24/7 food pantries located throughout the area. A map of these locations is available at FeedingTeam.org. If you know someone in need, the Feeding Team pantries are always open, and watch our social media for other food events.

Each event needs 15 to 20 volunteers. Other Feeding Team programs are also completely volunteer-driven. If you are interested in volunteering to help hungry area families, please message us on Facebook, email Lisa@FeedingTeam.org, or call our office at (317) 832-1115.

My fear factors

"... the only thing we have to fear is ... fear itself," said President Roosevelt in 1933 at his inauguration.

Obviously, he never suffered trauma in the dentist's chair when he was a child. I still remember that Dr. "G" would never completely numb me when I got a cavity filled. To this day, the anxiety I feel whenever I have a dental procedure is brutal.

And so, it was at 7:30 a.m. on Monday that I found myself walking into the dentist's office to have two crowns placed in the upper left of my mouth. The fear and trepidation were real. Let's get this over with.

Dr. Bailey knows my fear, but I remind him every time. He is an excellent dentist who understands my anxiety and makes sure I'm numb. The "pinch" to the roof of my mouth is the worst. Sitting there for three hours is not fun. His assistant, Sam, explained every step they were taking. She said I seemed calm, but if she had X-rayed my insides, she would have seen I was suffering from internal jitters.

The three hours gave me time to think and write in my head. I pondered all my fears and their realness and severity. What I am most afraid of is whatever I am currently dealing with.

Another fear I have is that of bees. You see, I am allergic to their sting. Two years ago, I was stung by a wasp as I was taking down a wreath from our front porch. He got me good. Actually, he got me BAD. My hand looked more like a catcher's mitt. It swelled so quickly, and I couldn't get my ring off my finger, so the ER doctor had to cut it off. The only relief I get from a sting is

Red Geranium Artisan Market: 10 years of funding mission work

The REPORTER

The 10th annual Red Geranium Artisan Market will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 16. This event is held both indoors and outside the historical First Presbyterian Church (FPC) of Noblesville, 1207 Conner St.

The market continues to grow, as this year you will find 64 artisan vendors selling one-of-a-kind, handmade, and unique items. The artisan booths will be located both inside FPC and outside on the parking lot surface.

Shoppers will also enjoy live music throughout the day and be able to enjoy some delicious food from the Smokey Blue BBQ food truck, enjoy gourmet coffee and homemade lemonade at Kadi Mae LLC, or visit the ladies' bake sale inside the church for some yummy homemade treats.

The Red Geranium Artisan Market is both family and dog-friendly with free admission and free parking. Organizers suggest parking at the City Hall parking lot, one block west of the market, at 10th and Maple streets, or at the Levinson Parking Garage. Street parking near the church is available but limited. Handicap parking spaces are available in the alley running between Adrienes Flowers & Gifts and the church. Find an attendant to help you get parked and attend the show.

What makes this market unique

Red Geranium only selects two to three artisans from each category to keep the focus on providing shoppers with a variety of unique finds. Over half of the vendors are return artisans year after year because they love coming to the Red Geranium.

There will also be some exciting new artisans ready to share their creations. Categories include antiques, primitives, up-cycled and repurposed creations, garden art, mosaics, pottery, wood, glass art, metal, fibers, photography, jewelry, furniture, boutique clothing for adults and children, pet products, homemade candies and treats, vegetable or flower farmers, food vendors, musicians, and fine artists of all kinds.

A market with a mission

The purpose of the Red Geranium Artisan Market is to provide a fun community event that helps FPC raise funds for local and world missions.

A life lived in photographs

The REPORTER

Editor's note: Hamilton County recently lost a news icon who, in his storied career, had the opportunity to photograph nine U.S. presidents. Bob Daugherty passed away on Monday, July 21. His full obituary appears in today's edition on Page A10. Below is a piece he wrote about his 50 years in photojournalism, which The Reporter originally published on July 21, 2022.

Daugherty

My family moved from Kentucky to Marion out of economic necessity when I was 12.

My father was a poor sharecropper, and like many others, migrated north to the factories. My career in journalism began when I was about 11 years old. I had a swell deal with GRIT, a weekly newspaper published somewhere in Pennsylvania. I received a small bundle of tabloid-sized newspapers by mail each week. I would make the rounds to farm fields near East Fork, Kentucky, and call on my steady customers.

One such customer told me he couldn't read, but that he sure liked the many pictures in the newspaper. I gave

Spiffy, swanky & swell gala will make the '20s roar

On Aug. 2, you can go to a free open house to tour and learn about the history of the Hedback, but by buying a ticket to the centennial gala, you can live a night in 1925 and help keep the Hedback open until 2125.

The Reporter spoke with Centennial Celebration Committee Chair Etta Biloon and Committee Member Marie Beason about an event that was literally 100 years in the making.

"As in any 100-year-old building, we need to make repairs, we need to make some renovations, we need to be looking ahead towards the future of the building," Biloon said. "Given that we haven't had a fundraiser in probably about 10 years, we decided to try and do something here to see if we could raise some funds for all these things that are starting to go wrong and things that need attention."

Soren McLaughlin finds her voice

By JANET HART LEONARD
For The Reporter

For 16 years, the Great American Songbook Academy has welcomed 40 of the top high school vocalists in the nation to spend a week with Michael Feinstein and some of the top vocal coaches, music directors, educators, and Broadway performers.

The Academy celebrates the songs of Broadway, jazz, and those who recognize the rich heritage of American music, as well as the composers who wrote these songs.

Last Saturday night, the 40 vocalists came together for a night of song and dance at the Allied Solutions Center of the Performing Arts in Carmel. This is truly an opportunity of a lifetime.

On stage was a Noblesville High School student named Soren McLaughlin. Soren proved she has music in her DNA. She is the third generation of excellent singers and musicians. Her father is Jeff McLaughlin, musician and educator. Her mother is Sarah Scharborough McLaughlin, a singer-songwriter and worship leader who has also graced the Palladium stage.

Hamilton County Board of Zoning Appeals sides with residents

news@readthereporter.com

The Hamilton County Board of Zoning Appeals (BZA) met July 23 in the Council Chambers at the Hamilton County Government and Judicial Center, 1 Hamilton County Square, Noblesville, in order to hear a petition from Aypa Power.

The petition was asking for a variance to build a Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) in an A-2 (agricultural) zoning district located at 21598 Overdorf Road.

After a meeting that lasted well over two hours and involved dozens of public comments and several direct questions from BZA members, the board voted unanimously to deny the petition.

One person in attendance told The Reporter more than 100 people were present for the public hearing. Thirty people spoke out asking the board to either deny the petition outright

Will Jackson Township catch reorganization fever?

The discussion was wide-ranging and concerned Westfield's expansion, what was being done in neighboring Adams Township, and zoning. Currently, Cook has agreed to let Cicero control zoning in the township.

Discussion also concerned the possibility of the state legislature eliminating township trustees and putting their duties of fire protection and welfare under

Submitted by City of Westfield

The Westfield City Council will review an updated ordinance that expands golf cart usage along designated trail systems while calling for an increased law enforcement presence on city trails. The proposed ordinance will be presented at the Monday, July 28 City Council meeting and, if adopted, will take effect Nov. 1, 2025.

Willis

“The rationale behind this ordinance is to create clarity and consistency,” Mayor Scott Willis said. “Golf carts have been legal on trails in the southeast portion of the city since 2018. Allowing golf cart usage in some areas for certain residents but not for others is inequitable and creates confusion. My goal is that this updated ordinance will eliminate confusion and create a more equal system for all trail users.”

This ordinance would apply to city-funded trails, such as the Midland Trace Trail from Carey Road to U.S. 31 and perimeter trails (sidewalks wider than five feet). Golf carts will continue to be prohibited on the Midland Trail west of U.S. 31 and on the Monon Trail.

“Despite efforts online to confuse this issue, I'm hopeful this ordinance will provide a consistent policy that will be strictly enforced by the Westfield Police Department,” Willis added.

Golf carts will continue to be inspected by the Westfield Police Department every two years, starting with an initial $100 fee that covers the first two years, followed by a $50 renewal fee every two years thereafter. Additional information about neighborhood inspection days will continue and be expanded, if passed.

Key provisions of the proposed ordinance include:

- Enhancing law enforcement presence on the trails to ensure all golf cart drivers are operating carts safely and by licensed drivers.

- Ensuring all golf carts are street legal, including having operational tail lights, turn signals, and other necessary safety features.
- Lowering the maximum speed for golf carts on the trails from 25 mph to 15 mph to improve safety for all trail users.
- Establishing a more transparent and enforceable policy for improper or unsafe golf cart operation.
- Enacting a clear fee and penalty structure:
 - The initial annual inspection fee for golf carts will be $100 which covers the first two years, followed by a $50 renewal fee every two years.
 - Violations fees: Those violating the policies for safe golf cart operation will be fined $100 for their first offense. A second offense would result in a $150 fine. A third (or subsequent) offense would result in a $300 and the possibility of a one-year permit revocation.

• Creating a clear city-wide policy that allows all residents equal access to trail-based golf cart use, rather than limiting access to specific neighborhoods.

The ordinance also does not allow golf carts in city-owned parks or on sidewalks less than five feet wide.

Please visit westfieldin.gov/golfcarts for additional information. If the ordinance passes, that website will be updated to reflect the new policies and approved trails.

The gala will have a silent auction, raffles, and a VIP area in the Epilogue Theater next door.

Beason, who is in charge of arranging the vaudeville and speakeasy portions of the event, told The Reporter her relationship to this theater goes back to her childhood.

“Back in 1968 or ‘69, I attended Civic Theater's Junior Civic Program in the building,” Beason said. “I actually saw a children's production of Hansel and Gretel, and as I was walking up Alabama Street, I saw the kids leaving the stage door. All I can remember is saying, ‘Oh my God, they're real!’ It really just solidified both my love of theater as well as the love of what can happen within this building.”

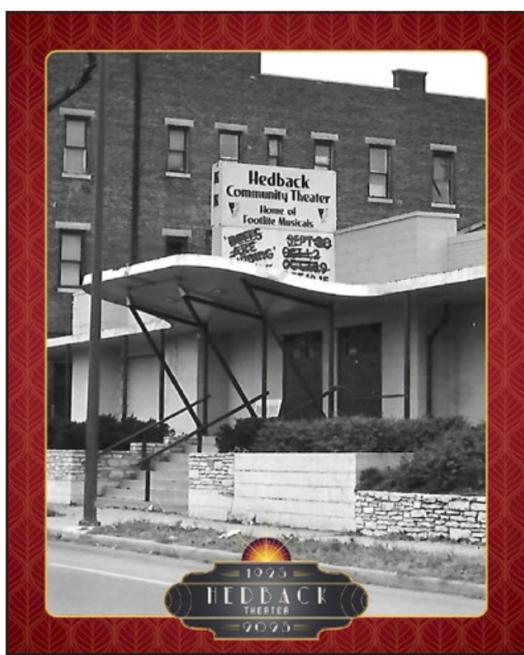

Thanks to Beason, the gala will feature iconic vaudeville players like Laurel and Hardy, Charlie Chaplin, Mae West, and W.C. Fields, along with music and dance.

“We'll be dancing the Charleston,” Beason said. “We'll be doing three skits, with the classic dance of Laurel and Hardy featured in one of them. It's a mish-mash of what research shows was a standard bill of fare for vaudeville: something light, a big musical number, dance, a comedy sketch, intermission, and then repeat the same thing over again in act two.”

According to Beason, you can relax, talk to folks, and be entertained by two-set 20-minute sessions of 1925 jazz fare.

This event is both about raising money to maintain the now-100-year-old building, and also about putting the community in community theater.

“I think every 100th anniversary should be celebrated in one way, shape, or form,” Beason said. “We're trying to not only raise money, but also to raise awareness within the neighborhood — which has changed a great deal — about the quality of musicals that we present and the sense of community that it brings.”

This event is sure to be the cat's meow, so don't be a killjoy and definitely don't dress like a rag-a-muffin.

Police investigate counterfeit memorabilia scheme connected to Westfield business

Submitted by Westfield Police Department

In February 2025, the Westfield Police Department (WPD) initiated an investigation into Mister Mancave LLC, a local business allegedly selling counterfeit autographed sports memorabilia through its online store and various other platforms. The investigation began after a woman in North Carolina reported receiving fraudulent merchandise from the company.

As the case progressed, additional victims were located, each claiming to have purchased autographed memorabilia from Mister Mancave that was later determined to be counterfeit.

On Tuesday, July 15, Westfield Police executed a search warrant at the Mister Mancave business location in connection with the suspected fraudulent scheme. The following day, Wednesday, July 16, the investigation extended to a residence in the 300 block of Hoover Street. Upon arrival at the residence, officers discovered an individual deceased from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound.

That individual has been identified as Brett Lemieux, 45, Westfield, the founder of Mister Mancave LLC and the primary suspect in this case.

WPD acknowledges that any loss of life is a tragedy, and the department extends its condolences to Mr. Lemieux's family and friends during this difficult time.

A significant quantity of evidence was collected during the searches, including documentation and items related to the alleged counterfeit operation. Investigators are also aware of a social media post made by Mr. Lemieux shortly before his death, in which he gave specific details and named other individuals who may have been involved. This will require additional time to carefully review and investigate all evidence and leads. Investigators are working with various authenticators for technical assistance and the authentication of all seized items.

Again, this remains an active and ongoing investigation, and WPD will give further updates as details unfold.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) is assisting, and WPD appreciates that continued partnership. In October 2024, WPD assigned one of its detectives part-time to the FBI White Collar Crimes Task Force, strengthening the department's ability to pursue complex financial and fraud-related crimes. This case is a powerful example of how partnerships and proactive planning can dramatically expand WPD's ability to serve and protect.

WPD is proud of the professionalism and persistence its detectives and officers have demonstrated throughout this investigation and commend their passion for serving. WPD also thanks law enforcement partners at the Carmel Police Department, Fishers Police Department, and the Hamilton County Sheriff's Office for their valuable assistance in this case.

No additional information will be provided at this time; updates will be made as they become available.

Anyone with information related to this case is encouraged to contact Detective Don Bennett of the Westfield Police Department at dbennett@westfield.in.gov.

Hamilton County offers free native plants after invasive removal

The REPORTER

The Hamilton County Invasives Partnership (HIP) and the Hamilton County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) are teaming up to help residents restore their landscapes – one tree at a time.

Through the Invasive Species Trade-In Program, property owners who remove invasive plants from their Hamilton County properties are eligible to receive free native plants from the SWCD's fall native sale.

"Eight-six percent of woody invasive plants in Indiana have been introduced through landscaping," SWCD Urban Conservationist Claire Lane said. "This program rewards homeowners who take action to remove these problem plants and replace them with beneficial natives."

How it works

Homeowners must identify and remove invasive species from their landscape, properly dispose of plant material and document their efforts with photos and a simple online application.

The program prioritizes the removal of commonly used landscape invasives such as: Callery Pear (including Bradford, Cleveland Select, and other cultivars), Burning Bush, Japanese Barberry, and Norway Maple, but other invasive species listed on the Indiana Invasive Species Council's Official Invasive Plant List are also eligible.

Complete applications are due Sept. 1. Applicants will receive a confirmation email by Sept. 9 with a discount code to redeem their free native plant(s) through the SWCD's fall sale. Orders must be placed by Sept. 21, with plant pickup scheduled for Oct. 2 and 3 in Noblesville.

Program details, application forms, and FAQs are available at hcinvasives.org/trade.

Promise 75

A love letter to our papa, a taste of timeless love

Promise 75 is just the dawn of another wild adventure – a promise of a beautiful future that Papa continues to create with his grandkids: Bhavya, Navya, Raahil, and Shaurya.

Seventy-five is a big milestone, and it's our turn to shower him with the love, gratitude, and quiet reverence he's always given us – without ever asking for it back.

Papa has always been the one who believed in us more than we knew how to believe in ourselves. He loved us unconditionally, dreamed for us long before we even closed our eyes the night before an exam, and pampered us in ways that prepared us for the world outside.

Papa, we truly have big footsteps to follow.

You taught us life lessons not through lectures or rules, but through your living example – silent, yet sturdy ... soft, yet strong. You live your values so deeply that words sometimes fall short to describe your wisdom.

To the world, you may seem introverted – quiet, settled, and satisfied.

But to us? You're an innovator, a sharp observer, a master of unexpected jokes.

You love even your enemies like family. You forgive before anyone asks for forgiveness.

You notice every small gesture. You give without announcing, and you serve without seeking.

Your love language is subtle, layered, and full of grace.

Your synergy with God, and your relentlessly positive spirit, turns everyday life into something sacred and magical. We've learned hospitality, generosity, and kindness from you – at a level most people don't expect, and few can match.

You've honored every role you've held – as a son, brother, husband, father, and now grandfather – with quiet brilliance.

Since Mummy passed away, you've carried both roles without a single complaint. Your presence has been our greatest anchor. You're not just "doing" the role of a grandfather – you're nailing it.

We've picked up style and elegance from your wardrobe, learned the art of neatness from your decor sense, and watched how you carry storms in silence – transforming chaos into calm, every single time.

There are more than 75 reasons we call you our legend.

Your commitment to our family, your loyalty to our business, your unwavering work ethic – they are contagious. You've taught us how to show up, stand tall, and work our way forward with dignity.

You never asked for anything big for yourself – just your routines: work, pray, love, and let others live joyfully around you. That has been enough for you. And somehow, more than enough for all of us.

Your life is a masterclass in living simply, loving deeply, and leading quietly.

You are our strength, our storyteller, our soft place to land.

Vanilla Custard Fruit Salad – a family classic that has sweetened our memories for as long as I can remember. That perfect pairing of chilled milk and fresh fruits has always been more than just a dessert; it's a feeling. A taste that melts into your senses and takes you back to the simplest, happiest days.

We siblings grew up sharing this bowl together, and even today, it remains our go-to celebration staple – a humble dish that turns any ordinary day into a special occasion. And on our dad's 75th birthday, it had to be on the table.

Instead of traditional gifts, we created something with heart:

- A classic vinyl record, personalized with his photos and framed with a wooden hanger
- A lock of his hair, a symbol of style and strength
- A measuring tape with a message: Your love is beyond measure
- And my personal favorite – a T-shirt that reads "The Legend – the Legacy, Like Father Like Daughter"

Good ingredients in good hands make a tasty play

Brightening the Beef & Boards Dinner Theatre stage for summertime 2025 is the Broadway hit Waitress. This Tony Award-nominated musical is directed and choreographed by Stephanie Tornis, an alum of the original show. Lending her expertise to B&B's uber-talented cast results in a tenderhearted production which is bound to fill the seats at this popular venue.

At its inception, Waitress was a 2007 Hollywood film, which was adapted for the stage as a musical in 2015 with a book by Jessie Nelson and music and lyrics by Sara Bareilles. It ran on Broadway for over 1,500 performances.

Indianapolis native (and Broadway veteran) Keirsten Hodgens stars as Jenna, the pie-baking marvel at Joe's Pie Diner who faces a complicated life with a bad marriage and a baby on the way. Blessed with an angelic voice and top-level acting ability, Ms. Hodgens presents a wonder-filled performance as her Jenna triumphantly survives the troubles she faces. Her lamenting solo, "She Used to be Mine," is a showstopper.

Joining Ms. Hodgens are

KEN KLIGENMEIER

Grace Atherholt and Chanel Edwards-Frederick as Dawn and Becky, Jenna's co-workers at the diner. The ladies add much to the story arc with memorable turns, and the trio's combined vocals are some of the most enchanting musical moments of the production.

Noah Berry is excellent as Jenna's obstetrician, Dr. Pomatter. Berry offers a wide range of abilities with his humorous, touching and song-filled portrayal. Berry's duet with Ms. Hodgens, "You Matter to Me," is just beautiful – sentimental and heartrending.

Logan Moore impresses as Earl, Jenna's cluelessly selfish husband. To say Earl is a despicable jerk would be leaving out most of his bad qualities, but somehow Moore, in one scene at least, makes us almost feel sorry for the guy.

Brett Mutter knows how to be funny, and his hilarious portrait of Ogie, Dawn's goofy, but loveable, boyfriend brings the house down. Filled with a sincere and eager devotion to his mother, his hobbies and his poetry, Ogie is a classic Mutter characterization. (His handling of a suddenly broken chair will be told and retold in B&B lore.)

Douglas Stark makes his brief appearances count as diner owner Joe. Mr. Stark gives him a wise-old-man aura and is endearing in his efforts. Filling out the cast are Adam du Plessis as Cal the cook and Arielle Faye Beane as Nurse Norma. Both adroitly supply a good stock of one-liners along the way. Imani Dancler appears as Lulu, Jenna's daughter, with a certain sparkle.

Music direction by Kristy Templet adds quality as she leads the onstage orchestra through the beautiful score. One can also see Ms. Templet's deft hand in the close-harmony vocalizations throughout. Set design by Shaun A. McIlquham is highly functional for the many quick scene changes and costumes designed by Kathy Henry are on the mark. Chef Larry Stoops' buffet is themed to the diner with a brunchy selection.

Bottom line: A blend of marvelous ingredients makes this show a must see. The fine performances, the timely storyline, and the dynamic score all combine to offer the audience a production that deserves its standing ovation.

Carmel Fire equips ambulances in service with LUCAS devices

Mechanical CPR machines could be gamechanger in saving lives

Submitted by City of Carmel

Marking a significant advancement in emergency response with potential for improved patient outcomes, all five Carmel Fire Department (CFD) ambulances in service are now equipped with LUCAS mechanical CPR devices.

The automated chest compression systems provide consistent, hands-free cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), enhancing both patient care and firefighter safety during cardiac emergencies.

Benefits of the LUCAS Device

- Improved personnel efficiency: Frees up firefighters and paramedics to perform other life-saving tasks or manage the emergency scene
- Consistent compression quality: Delivers high-quality, fatigue-free chest compressions
- Enhanced clinical oversight: Supports quality assurance and performance review during cardiac arrest responses
- Crew safety and wellness: Reduces physical strain, enabling better decision-making

ing under pressure

• Safer ambulance transport: Increases safety for providers during patient transport

• Continuous care: Minimizes interruption of compressions during movement (e.g., stairways, confined spaces)

• Potential for improved patient outcomes: May contribute to increased cardiac arrest survival rates

CFD began a six-month trial of the LUCAS device in November 2023. During the evaluation period, the device quickly proved to be a valuable asset during cardiac arrest responses, demonstrating both operational and clinical benefits.

Following the successful trial, and with the support of Mayor Sue Finkam and the Carmel City Council, CFD secured funding to expand the program. Their leadership and commitment to public safety enabled the department to purchase four additional LUCAS devices, ensuring this critical tool is available on every front-line ambulance.

Carmel Fire Department crew members practice administering the LUCAS device.

"The City of Carmel and the Carmel Fire Department are committed to setting a high standard for emergency response," Chief Joel Thacker said. "Our dedication to implementing innovative tools like the LUCAS device reflects a strong focus on patient care, firefighter safety, and operational excellence. This level of leadership and dedication strengthens the resilience of our community in ways that our citizens both expect and rightfully deserve."

Additionally, thanks to the generous support of the Hamilton County Health Department, CFD was able to purchase its first LU-CAS unit following the trial. The department was also permitted to retain the demo unit, allowing two devices to remain in service during the transition period.

"This is about saving lives and protecting those who save them," Mayor Finkam said. "By investing in the LUCAS devices, our crews are better able to deliver consistent, high-quality CPR, reduce physical exertion and improve outcomes for cardiac arrest patients. I hope the community is proud of this innovation because with around 83 cardiac arrests occurring each year, it's a tremendous investment in Carmel's future."

Calloway's Cookout celebrates lasting legacy

Submitted

Carmel Gateway, the largest suburban office park in central Indiana, held a special memorial cookout on July 24 to honor the memory of beloved Operating Partner and Head Chef, Patrick Calloway.

Calloway's Cookout brought together more than 100 office park tenants and Calloway's family members in celebration of his life and lasting legacy as a friendly face in their Labor District Cafe on campus. Calloway died in 2023 after his battle with cancer and was known as a loving father and grandfather as well as a beloved coworker who enjoyed cold beer, good wings, and well-prepared food.

Last fall, Carmel Gateway planted a tree on their campus in his honor with a memorial plaque. The Calloway Cookout is a community recognition of the memorial tree and curated landscaping on this portion of campus featuring yellow flow-

Gateway, an office park home to hundreds of employees of different companies, is a con-

Serving feeds the soul, too! Angels in disguise

My grandfather on my dad's side was the elected sheriff of Iron County, Missouri in 1940. He and my grandmother during their lives also owned a liquor store and a restaurant and newsstand. For folks younger than 40, newsstands were where the adults used to go for information downloads and live social media feeds. It also involved some coffee and lots of conversation.

Full disclosure: she gave us permission to use her words and it is our practice to maintain confidentiality, so her name has been changed to respect her privacy.

This is from our Volunteer Maggie:

I truly love volunteering for your organization. Between 18 to 24, I was a single mom. I worked full time, lived on my own, and got my associate's degree. I made too much money according to social services to get any kind of assistance ($7.75 an hour). I was literally the working poor class.

I was too ashamed to go to a food pantry. I remember feeding my kids scrambled eggs many nights or Banquet frozen dinners. I even had to choose between getting my gas shut off or putting gas in my car for work and a babysitter. I lived off payroll cash advance places.

I wouldn't even reach out to my parents to let them know how bad it was. Sometimes they would figure it out and during buy-one-get-one-free sales buy stuff they would never use originally and act like that's why they had it, so I would accept it. I felt ashamed and didn't want to let my parents down – even though they never made me feel ashamed, if that makes sense!

I wish there had been an organization like yours around when I needed it ... the drive-thru line that you are not judging people as they come in, the secure pantry locations. It is all amazing. Coming from someone who had a rough start in life who knows what food insecurity was, as an adult now I find myself overbuying groceries because I can, even though I don't need it. I relate it to that when I question myself 'why'. I always try to feed people now.

If you find it annoying, I may overly thank you for what you do, or tell you how awesome it is, I apologize. However, you are truly a blessing from God to all of these people. I hope you know the impact you have. You and your husband should be very proud of what you have created. It is amazing. I hope you have a wonderful day, and God is great!

Thank you, Maggie, you are truly a demonstration of courage and perseverance. Maggie worked at a recent volunteer event and shared more of her

A lot of us believe that some of the people we encounter are really angels in disguise. I know I certainly do. But I think animals can sometimes be angels as well.

I remember growing up with one of my favorite dogs of all time, a terrier mix named Buffy. Buffy was a wonderful dog for me, especially because the Schnauzer my parents had in my childhood often left bite marks on my shoes! And, occasionally, my leg.

Growing up can be so hard. As an awkward teenager with acne, glasses, braces, and a back brace for scoliosis, life was challenging. Whenever sadness enveloped my heart and caused the tears to fall, Buffy was there to comfort me. Somehow, she knew when I needed a kiss, a nudge, or just her presence beside me.

Adulthood isn't a walk in the park sometimes, either. My husband John, my son Jonathon, his girlfriend Olivia, and I had a wonderful vacation in South Dakota in mid-July. The flights home, however, were ... stressful, to say the least. (Fellow columnist Jan Hart Leonard knows my pain.) My other son, Jacob, was at home preparing to move to Bloomington with his girlfriend the week we got back.

The day we finally left to come back to Indiana, I encountered issues with the U-Haul we had reserved. Jacob's power steering went out on his Ford Fusion – thank God he was close to home. Jacob and his girlfriend's job search hadn't produced anything yet. All this, combined with the stressful trip home, completely overwhelmed me. Despite trying various tactics, I didn't sleep well Sunday night.

"... never forget that writing is as close as we get to keeping a hold on the thousand and one things – childhood, certainties, cities, doubts, dreams, instants, phrases, parents, loves – that go on slipping, like sand, through our fingers." – Salman Rushdie

SHARON McMAHON

while yet!

I truly believe that if you are a reader, you are also a writer, though you may not realize it. Note the quote I have used above. Writing is a powerful tool that emerges from our cognition in the form of memories, ideas, doubts and dreams, loves and losses. We live in a world of increasing challenges which can cause confusion and despair. Writing can help us discern our own philosophies and assist us in helping to improve lives of those around us through education, imagination, humor, and inspiration. If finding a professional publisher to take on your project feels too daunting, consider self-publishing which is an option that can provide a finished project for you.

Journaling can be a way to kick start your writing. I know some feel that it is necessary to write every single day otherwise it is not effective. I disagree. Write when you are inspired to write. Remember "pen pals"? Well, if you do you are definitely in my demographic! Sit down and write a letter (not a text or short email) to a friend about your life and how they have touched your life perhaps. Write an essay about your experiences in raising children, your career choices, your love life – anything that has happened to you in a significant way. We are all writers – we just need to write! There are workshops and classes to help you corral your thoughts if needed. Check your local library for those, and yes, look to the internet as well for guidelines and suggestions. Future generations of your family will appreciate you writing about your life events and how you may have dealt with your own challenges. Writing is powerful.

Most people who write professionally (vocation) get their start after pursuing their education and beginning a career with a publication or educational institution. Many authors found their writing careers later in life and began writing fiction or non-fiction professionally, while others pursue writing endeavors which include grant writing and professional journals. My primary professional career involved management as CEO of two different organizations and hosting a cable TV show while other ventures include teaching fitness classes and nutrition consulting and now includes the publication of one book and deep into the writing of another.

And, of course, writing for the Hamilton County Reporter remains one of my favorite writing journeys of this vocation/avocation.

So – I look to you, dear readers, for your assistance in some of my upcoming column topics. I have quite a few on my list but my primary focus is YOU and what I can share with you. It is very gratifying when I hear from you that I may have helped you in some small way reach your fitness goals. Last year I was approached by a woman who told me that some of my suggestions she incorporated into her nutrition and fitness program helped her to lose 20 pounds. She had tears in her eyes as she told me she had tried several "diets" over the years but appreciated my common sense suggestions. Then I had tears in my eyes as well!

If you have a suggestion for a health and fitness related topic or any feedback you would like to provide to assist me in my future topic selections please feel free to email those to sharon-keelcmahon@gmail.com.

Nameless

Some of the kindest memories I have are of acts of kindness from those who I do not even know their name. I also cannot remember what they looked like, but I can remember how they made me feel.

Do you have memories like that? Memories that leave you feeling a fuzzy warmth for years to come because of someone's kindness.

What is it about these simple acts of kindness that have such longevity? Many of those memories are fleeting moments. So why are they so impactful?

I believe it is because they are moments of unconditional kindness. There is no pressure of having to "return the favor" or feel indebted to anyone. Often in life, interactions with others can feel conditional.

Of course, I am not saying it is a bad thing to return a favor, but when that pressure is removed, the kindness feels so pure. Like it is heaven sent. Sometimes it is hard for me to wrap my head around how profoundly a kind stranger can touch my soul.

As a disabled person, in my experience, I often feel like I owe people something because they have gone out of their way to help me. I battle carrying immense amounts of guilt because I often feel I cannot pull my weight. It is a mental battle I have written about before.

Returning the favor is not always an equal thing for me. I am not able to physically do some of the things that others do for me. It is not just guilt, but also the pain of wanting to do the same thing in return and knowing that I cannot. It is frustrating, and heartbreaking at times.

Keeping the guilt at bay is an uphill battle, but one I am determined to keep working on. I try to use that guilt fuel for something positive. Reminding myself that we all bring different strengths to the table.

My good friend Leah, who was a fellow National Ambassador with me during my time at the Muscular Dystrophy Association, recently wrote a piece about me for her blog Heroes 4 Harmony. Leah also lives with a rare neuromuscular condition. Although she is much younger than me, I have learned many life lessons from her.

In her post, she described me as having a "voice rooted in grace and resilience." I read that sentence repeatedly, feeling honored that someone sees me that way. Leah has a true gift of lifting others up. She is someone who comes to mind when I think of the unconditional kindness I have seen her show others.

I was blown away at how she weaved my interview with her own words. She allowed me to see myself in a different light. It rattled my soul. I love a good soul rattling, don't you?

I believe when we experience these moments of transformative impacts on our lives, it is like a building block and helps us to transform our character in a positive direction.

Cuts to ACA & Medicaid are bad for public health

Primarily due to the Affordable Care Act, the United States has made great progress in expanding health insurance coverage. The uninsured rate is at an historic low of 7.7 percent. In 2010, it was 16 percent before the ACA's enactment.

RICHARD D. FELDMAN, M.D.
State of Our Health

from the uninsured to those insured.

The progress made in insurance coverage is now threatened by the Trump administration and Congress. The passage of the Budget Reconciliation Act ("The Big, Beautiful Bill") brings significant changes to the ACA and Medicaid, which, according to the Congressional Budget Office, will result in 12 million Americans losing coverage.

In 2017, President Trump and many Republican lawmakers failed to repeal the ACA. They now have the opportunity to roll back many ACA provisions. Maiming the ACA is a priority.

The legislation significantly reduces ACA/Medicaid funding. The enhanced Marketplace premium subsidies sunset at the end of 2025 and will not be renewed. Patient co-payments will be instituted in expanded Medicaid and there will be reductions in the allowed Medicaid provider taxes. These taxes help cover states' portion of the Medicaid expansion in order to draw down the enhanced federal match.

Medicaid work requirements and escalated scrutiny over eligibility are major focuses. The administration already slashed ACA enrollment outreach by 90 percent, and Congress contracted enrollment periods. There will be limitations for Medicare eligibility, Marketplace premium subsidies for certain legal-status immigrants, and federal funding for emergency care for the undocumented. Huge reductions in Medicaid funding for long-term care will lead to eligibility restrictions, service cuts, and closure of nursing homes.

The Senate version of this bill also proposed increasing certain Marketplace plan premiums and prohibiting Medicaid coverage for many lawfully residing non-citizens such as refugees and immigrants whose statuses are not immediately verifiable. Additionally, reducing the enhanced 90 percent federal match for states that cover undocumented immigrants under expanded Medicaid was offered. The parliamentarian ruled these provisions ineligible for inclusion if the Senate wanted to pass the bill with a simple majority rather than the usual 60-vote requirement (cloture).

Conceivably, those provisions could be revisited in the future along with additional proposals such as alternative lower-premium insurance plans lacking the ACA's consumer protections (like pre-existing condition coverage); plans with high-risk, high-premium insurance pools; curtailing the enhanced expanded Medicaid match; converting Medicaid financing to state block grants; and an overall cap on federal funding.

Trump does support some positive changes including surprise billing protections, hospital price transparency regulations, and lowering drug pricing.

To extend the 2017 tax cuts and introduce new ones, significant reductions in federal spending were required. Since Trump determined that the big-ticket items of Medicare, Social Security, and defense would not be touched, it necessitated the ACA and Medicaid to be on the chopping block.

A dark time for American health care.

— Good news from Stony Creek Church of Christ —
Seeing our need for grace: sin

Why did the multitudes of poor, sick, and sin-sick people flock to Jesus? Why do we see poor people in other countries lining up to be baptized into Christ, but not here? Why do evangelists have better success with people in prisons (or jails) than with people on the outside? Ever wonder why that is?

My answer is in question form: Why is it easier to sell parkas to people in Alaska than in Florida? ANSWER: Because folks in Alaska recognize their need and Floridians do not see a need.

Why does anybody buy anything? Because we are convinced we need it. Any good salesman knows his best customer is someone in need of what he is selling. Sadly, I do not need many things I think I need, while many things I need go by the wayside because I do not realize my need. Why will a man who refuses to exercise and eat good food suddenly start doing so after a heart attack? Does he suddenly need exercise and good food? No, but the medical emergency made him aware of the need. The same can be true of spiritual needs.

We need God's grace because of sin. Sadly, far too few people realize they need God's grace. Why is that? ANSWER: Because they do not realize their own sinfulness. Or they do not understand just how awful their sins are before God. Those who do not will simply sit in their sins.

Our story begins in Genesis, which means "beginning." It is appropriate for the book because Genesis tells of many beginnings, like the beginning of the world, mankind, the family, God's promises, His nation, and His plan. But it also tells us of another beginning – the beginning of sin.

Can you imagine what it must have been like to live in the Garden of Eden? Think of the beauty, the leisure, the peace, the joy, the happiness, etc. Adam and Eve walked and talked directly with God. Work was easy. Relationships were happy. Even the law was pretty limited: Tend the garden. Be fruitful and multiply. Do not eat from the tree of knowledge of good and evil. There was no hurt, pain, sickness, sadness, or loneliness. The world was good. Life was good.

Why do we not live in that world? What changed? Sin changed everything (Genesis 3:1-6). The serpent convinced Eve that God's laws were holding her back from the greatest blessings. He pointed her to the forbidden tree and convinced her to take a bite. Eve turned to her husband and convinced him.

In that moment, everything changed. Sin entered our world. Death reigned, through sin (Romans 5:12).

Genesis goes on to show the consequences of sin. Pain in childbearing and hardship in marriage entered the world because of sin (Genesis 3:16). Struggle with work entered because of sin (Genesis 3:17-19). Sin destroys relationships like those of siblings and murder happened among brothers (Genesis 4). The world was destroyed by a flood because of sin (Genesis 6-8). But even in the new world, sin reared its ugly head which impacted not nations (Genesis 9:20-27). And so on. Sin has been passed from father to son and mother to daughter since the beginning, not by birth or inheritance, but by example and pattern.

All have sinned (Romans 3:23). You have sinned. I have sinned. We all have sinned and fallen short of God's glory. Genesis wants us to understand the nature of sin. Over and over again sin caused every problem mankind faced throughout the book.

Do you think it is different today?

What are we to grasp from this? Sin is what causes our problems. Foremost, sin has separated us from our Creator (Isaiah 59:2) (and it may do so eternally without God's grace) and, as a result, sin created every struggle we face. Sin does nothing but cause pain and problems.

Certainly, there is some pleasure, otherwise, there would be no temptation. But is it worth it? How sweet and juicy was the fruit that Adam and Eve ate? Was it worth the consequences and all we see in the world today? How sweet were the sins you have committed in your life? Were they worth all the pain, broken relationships, wounded friends, estranged family, loneliness, and isolation?

Would you like to overcome that? Would you like to be set free from that? Then do something about your sin. You need God's grace. Turn to Him. Repent of your sins and be baptized for the forgiveness of your sins (Acts 2:38). Then live in His grace (Romans 6:1-4).

NAMELESS

Experiencing unexpected humanity can catch us off guard in a good way. Often others see in us our best qualities that can be hard for us to recognize.

To the person who unloaded my groceries when you saw me struggling ...

To the person who picked me up off the floor after countless people ignored me ...

To the angel in the operating room who calmed my fears ...

You have rattled my soul. You may be nameless, but the effects of your unconditional kindness will last a lifetime.

Until next time ...

ANGELS

I fell to my knees beside my bed last Monday evening and just prayed with my mind, heart, and soul to God. I knew He was in control of everything and that I had to let my worries go.

The next thing I knew, our cat, Chilly, hopped on my bed and came over to nuzzle me. I finally let the tears fall ... tears that I had been holding back since our flight troubles began last Saturday. Chilly just sat quietly beside me, purring softly as I stroked her long, soft fur. I felt such a release ... such peace.

Chilly has comforted me in the past when my heart was heavy, and I've often called her my Angel Kitty.

That night, I slept well. I woke up the next morning filled with hope. Was everything 100 percent resolved? No. Did I have faith that God would handle everything in His way, in His time, to eventually surprise us all with something we never even expected? You bet.

Countless studies show the benefits of pets in our lives. Many say they provide relief from stress thanks to lowering cortisol.

Me? I think they're often sweet angels sent to us from God. I'm grateful for my Angel Kitty. If you're a pet owner, I hope you en-

CCPR introduces Jerry's Native Tree Walk

The REPORTER

Carmel Clay Parks & Recreation (CCPR) recently introduced a new educational feature at Carey Grove Park, 14001 N. Carey Road: Jerry's Native Tree Walk, a self-guided tour honoring the late Jerry Kozlansky, CCPR Park Operations Manager of Natural Resources.

Kozlansky was a devoted outdoorsman and naturalist who was deeply passionate about nature and committed to preserving the beauty of the parks he cherished. One of his passion projects was developing a way to help the community connect with Indiana's native trees. Now, thanks to a new interpretive sign and individual tree labels, that vision has come to life.

Jerry's Native Tree Walk features 22 native tree species, many of which were planted in April 1993 as a gift from the Citizens of Greenspace. The new sign includes a map of the walk with tree names listed in numerical order. It also includes two QR codes, one linking to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) plants database and another offering a digital version of the map for visitors to take with them on their walk.

Park goers can walk the path and scan the QR code on individual tree labels, learning about the unique characteristics of each species. Native Trees are integral to maintaining a healthy ecosystem, providing shelter for wildlife, improving air quality, offering shade, and supporting biodiversity.

"Jerry's passion permeated through our programs and our parks," Parks and Natural Resources Director Michael Allen said. "I'm thrilled that he will continue to be a light for future generations with this new self-guided educational resource."

Want to make a difference in your own backyard? Consider planting a native tree to support a healthier local environment.

Robert Allen (Bob) Daugherty

January 16, 1939 – July 21, 2025

The world has lost a faithful, loyal, extraordinary man. Robert Allen (Bob) Daugherty, 86, passed away on Monday, July 21. He was born in a three-room wooden house on January 16, 1939, in rural Bath County, Ky., near Owingsville, to sharecroppers and shined shoes for spare money during childhood.

When asked how he got started in photography, Bob shared that as a young boy, he was inspired while delivering the GRIT, a local community newspaper, to the farmers near East Fork, Ky., when a customer confided that he couldn't read but sure enjoyed the pictures!

In his early teens, Bob's family resettled to Marion, Ind. It was there that his passion for photography began. Obtaining his first camera at the age of 15, he volunteered on the Marion High School Newspaper and earned money working for the Marion Chronicle Tribune. His camera gave him a new window to the world, and he never looked back, a long way from helping his father on the tobacco farm.

Several years later, he was recruited by the Indianapolis Star. It was there that he met his future wife Stephanie, a staff writer at the Star. They were married in 1963, the same year that he was recruited by the Associated Press, beginning a 43-year career with the AP.

Forty of his 43 years were spent in the Washington Bureau of The Associated Press, where he was staff photographer, chief photographer, assistant chief of bureau for photos, and then Director of the State Photo Center. He covered The White House, Capitol Hill, the Gulf War, 37 Kentucky Derbies, 23 Masters Golf Classics, 22 political conventions, Nixon's trip to China, the Watergate Hearings, The Paris Peace talks, The Gulf War, The World Series, the Olympics, and nine U.S. Presidents.

Bob won many awards for his outstanding work. While working for The Associated Press in Indianapolis in 1965, he received the Sagamore of the Wabash and was named a Kentucky Colonel. He was recognized in the 1980-81 Who's Who in America for his photo journalism, and in 1999 he received the AP Oliver Gramling Achievement Award. In 2007, he was inducted into the Marion High School Hall of Distinction and in 2009 was honored by the Washington White House News Photographers Association with a Lifetime Achievement Award as the News Photographer of the Year. Then in 2015, he was named to the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame by the Indiana Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists.

Bob was one of the giants in the worldwide community of Associated Press photos and national news. An AP Photo Editor once said, "Bob stands out as one of the AP's all-time greats, not just for his outstanding photography, but for his presence as a leader, mentor, colleague, and role model."

Bob and Stephanie lived nearly 40 years in Falls Church, Va., where, outside of work, Bob cherished moments on the soccer field as he served as coach of his son's soccer team and an official at the local swim club for his son's swim meets. Following retirement, he and Stephanie moved to Noblesville to be closer to family, where Bob volunteered as a member of the Cicero Kiwanis and Noblesville Rotary Clubs.

Bob's legacy will be his kindness, steadiness, and his insistence of quality work. He was a faithful, loyal, good man, and will be remembered for his witty quips and sense of humor, always ready to play a joke on his nearest and dearest friends. As we bid a loving farewell to him, we are reminded that even in the face of adversity, his spirit shines brightly, lighting our lives with love, laughter, and an enduring legacy.

Suffering from a series of health complications in recent years, he maintained his stoic resolve, ever positive, never questioning, always ready to move to the next challenge.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Marvin and Kathleen Daugherty of Marion, Ind.; and an infant daughter. He leaves behind his wife of 61 years, Stephanie; his son, John Patrick Daugherty; grandson, John Thomas Daugherty; sister, Alberta Brock; daughter-in-law, Karim Daugherty; two nieces; two grand-nieces; one grand-nephew; a sister-in-law, Trena Goodwin; and many more grieving family and friends.

Bob's advice:

An apple a day? No. Instead, enjoy a Perfect Rob Roy with me. Take time every day to look at the sunsets, one of my favorite past-times when I retired on Morse Lake. Regrets are a heavy thing. Let them go and carry on. Take time to mentor a young person. Adopt a cat. They are wonderful companions, like my British Blue, "Mr. Eli."

Bob's care has been entrusted to Hartley-Dunnichay Funeral Homes in Cicero. Per Bob's wishes, there will be no funeral service. The family will hold a private gathering to celebrate a life well-lived. In lieu of flowers, please consider giving donations in his name to the Cicero Kiwanis or the Noblesville Rotary Club. His memory will forever warm our hearts, and his love will sustain us through the years to come.

In celebrating Bob's life, we invite you to share your memories, stories, and photographs on his memorial page at hartleyfuneralhomes.com. These contributions will serve as a comforting keepsake for her family and a beautiful testament to Bob's vibrant life.

New children's book celebrates milestones in golf

If you're a young golfer, you remember certain milestones.

Your first round under 100. Your first birdie. Your first big tournament win.

There are also milestones that are intangible, but certainly no less important. Incoming Guerin Catholic senior Ali Scott celebrates all those milestones – whether or not they involve scores – in her book, I Love Golf When.

Scott published I Love Golf When at the end of last year, telling The Reporter that it "took a year to make." She wrote and illustrated the book herself; Scott said most of the time was spent drawing, which she said was her favorite part.

"I love drawing. It's a pastime for me, it's a hobby for me," said Scott.

The text of I Love Golf When discusses milestones such as "the excitement of a long putt, the pride of a first par and the thrill of a winning shot," according to the description on the back of the book. Scott begins the book illustrating putt-putt tournaments with family and friends, then moves on to other key achievements in a young golfer's career, such as lowering her score, staying calm in tricky situations and winning tournaments.

"I wrote this book to inspire other kids to get into golf and experience the same joys and milestones that I got from golf," said Scott.

I Love Golf When is designed for ages 2 to 11, but readers of all ages will find something to enjoy. A glossary of golf terms appears at the back of the book, and Scott said even her uncle learned new things about golf while reading.

The book also looks at the moments where a golfer overcomes adversity in a round. Those examples include staying calm when their ball is on the edge of the water and rebounding from a double bogey to make a birdie, all while playing through the rain.

Scott believes everything can be a milestone in golf, especially when the ball is on the edge of the water or a bunker. "That happens to me a lot when my ball goes almost at the edge of the bunker and it doesn't go in," said Scott. "The water, like in the book, it becomes a challenge and you can get joys from that challenge. There's joys in the score that you can find. There's good things they can find from a little challenge and getting a good shot."

I Love Golf When has gotten a good reception so far, with the book selling well. Scott said she's been "really surprised and happy" about how much people are enjoying it, especially young children. Scott said her uncle bought a copy for his kids and they enjoyed it.

"They wanted to re-read it all the time," said Scott. "I've seen a lot of other kids and their parents say, 'They love to re-read it and all that kind of stuff. It makes me really happy that all of this has had a good ending.'"

The book is available at the Bridgewater Club in Westfield and on Scott's website, ilovegolfwhen.com. You can also order it on Amazon.

Etchison Golf Outing raises $30K
Thirty-nine foursomes play at annual tournament

NOBLESVILLE – Once again, it seemed like Tony Etchison was smiling down on his own tournament.

The fourth annual Tony Etchison Memorial Golf Outing took place last Monday at Fox Prairie Golf Club in Noblesville. The tournament honors the beloved late Noblesville native and also raises funds for Etchison's Memorial Foundation.

"It's been going so well," said Toby Etchison, Tony's wife. "It's been great to see everybody, get lots of hugs and seeing everybody continue his legacy of wanting to make that difference in others. Being out there to support the boys and I means the world to us."

The foundation estimates that this year's tournament raised around $30,000 for the foundation. During the tournament, the foundation presented its annual $5,000 check to the Noblesville Boys & Girls Club, as well as a $2,000 check to the Noblesville Elks Lodge No. 576 for cancer research.

This year's tournament featured 39 foursomes competing, including friends of Tony Etchison and his family. One of the participants was Sally (Shonk) White, a 2003 Noblesville graduate who placed third in the state meet in 2000 and was state runner-up in 2002, the same year she won the Mental Attitude Award. White helped the Millers to team state runner-up finishes in 2000 and 2001.

White now works as the director of merchandise for the Western Golf Association and Evans Scholars Foundation.

"We do a lot of purchasing for different events that raise money for the Evans Scholars Foundation, and then I run the merchandise tent for the BMW Championship, which is our flagship tournament."

The Evans Scholars Foundation runs a caddy scholarship program that awards full tuition and housing college scholarships to deserving caddies. More information is available at wgaesf.org.

Next year's outing is tentatively planned for Monday, July 20, with announcements of entries to be made in the spring of 2026.

"We're just able to do so much," said Toby Etchison. "It warms me a great deal. As hard as this day is and why we have to be here, it's still a celebration."

Brown finishes as runner-up at Indiana Women's Amateur

By RICHIE HALL

INDIANAPOLIS – It was just like old times for Samantha Brown last Wednesday.

The Westfield graduate and 2023 IHSAA state champion finished second at the Indiana Women's Amateur tournament, which took place at Broadmoor Country Club in Indianapolis. Brown, who just finished her freshman season at Purdue University, scored a three-day, 54-hole total of 213, putting her three under par for the tournament.

Fort Wayne's Madi Dibagia was the tournament champion, going under par all three rounds to finish with a nine under 207. Brown went under par on the first day with a two-under 70, scored 74 in the second round, and completed the event with a third-day score of 69, three under par.

"Day one and day three, I played solid," said Brown. "Yesterday, I struggled quite a bit."

Brown made five birdies during the third round, giving her a total of 11 for the event. She said that she played in less tournaments this summer as opposed to last summer, since her first year of college golf turned out to be busy.

"Last year, I went in and I wasn't super fresh, and my goal this year was to not play in as much of the summer so I could go in and be fresh for the college season," said Brown.

Brown's decision to reduce her summer schedule proves that she gained experience during her first year of collegiate golf, and now she is ready for her sophomore season.

"I think I learned so much last year, just with all the adversity that I faced, at least in my golf game," said

Brown was one of several Hamilton County players to finish in the top 10. That included two players on opposite sides of the age spectrum: Maya Fujisawa Keuling and Jocelyn Bruch.

Hebert settling in with Millers

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

It's been 20 years since John Hebert had the feeling of being the new coach at a program.

The longtime Carmel coach is now leading the Noblesville football team. So far, Hebert and the Millers are proving to be a solid combination.

Noblesville hosted a four-team scrimmage July 16 at Beaver Field, with teams from Pike, Fort Wayne Snider and Bloomington South also participating. Once the scrimmage was finished, Hebert spoke to The Reporter about his new team, and everything was positive.

"I'm really having a great time," said Hebert. "I have a great coaching staff, 17 guys that are here every day and they're pouring into these kids and they're really good at what they do. And the kids are loving that. They're loving the coaching and the attention and the feedback that they're getting. So, when you have a great staff and you have a really eager team full of guys that are working really hard, it's just a lot of fun every day."

Noblesville and the other teams participated in seven-on-seven drills and game situations, providing some extra reps for not only the Millers' starters and rotating players, but also for the junior varsity and freshman players.

"I thought that they showed up today ready to be who they have shown us they are every day," said Hebert. "I think that there's been a disconnect where, they work hard, they're great kids, they have great energy and spirit and we're building a strong team. But, when it comes to showing up on the field, they've got to remember that you just need to be who you are all the time. That's good enough for us and we'll build off of that. And I think we did that today. I think they rose to that standard of how we want to show up on the field. It's the same way we want to show up in the weight room every day."

In addition to the scrimmage, Hebert said the team picked a leadership council last week. The 10 players with the most votes are on the council.

"We're getting started with leadership training and confidence building," said Hebert. "Everything that we add, everything that we do, the kids are there with their notebooks, taking notes and buying into what we're asking them to do."

"I think they might be starting to see how it's coming together. It could be hard for a 16-, 17-year-old to see how all this fits, that who you are as a person, as an individual, impacts who you are as a football player. By not just focusing on the football part, you are actually doing yourself a great service of development."

Hebert said that culture is more important than football but is aware that the kids on his team are there to play football. The coach said that they can get players "to do a lot of things that they might not have ordinarily chosen to do, because it's football-related. We do keep football at the center of what we're doing, but it's more just about integrity and character and showing up ready to be the best version of yourself, even if you don't feel like it."

The first official IHSAA practice for football is Aug. 4, with the first games to be played on Aug. 22. Hebert said the team is starting to see that "we have guys in the right spots." Noblesville played a scrimmage

All nine Hamilton County schools earn top sportsmanship numbers

The REPORTER

With the conclusion of the high school spring sports season last month, the IHSAA is pleased to announce the schools who achieved the state's highest sportsmanship numbers.

During the 2024-25 school year, the Association began recognizing schools' sportsmanship and adherence to the principles of wholesome amateur athletics in this new way.

As part of the Association's continuing Sportsmanship/Leadership program, school administrators are able to monitor their score daily on the member schools-only my-IHSAA website.

Those schools who have accumulated 100 points are recognized as "First Team All-Sportsmanship" and those with 95 points are recognized as "Honorable Mention All-Sportsmanship". These scores are based solely on deductions for the spring season so they will not reflect the ongoing total sportsmanship score for a school if the school engaged in activities to earn points through the sportsmanship program.

Seasonal Sportsmanship Awards recognize schools at the end of each season based on scores for an individual season. For example, spring sportsmanship scores are based solely on the spring sports regardless of what sportsmanship score was achieved in the fall and winter.

Points are deducted by contest ejections of players, coaches, administrators, and fans.

All nine Hamilton County schools received honors. Six schools were named First Team All-Sportsmanship: Carmel, Fishers, Guerin Catholic, Hamilton Heights, Sheridan and University. The other three were named Honorable Mention All-Sportsmanship: Hamilton Southeastern, Noblesville and Westfield.

"We want to acknowledge and congratulate those schools who have exemplified sportsmanship as indicated by their sportsmanship scores," says IHSAA Assistant Commissioner Jane Schott, who administers the IHSAA sportsmanship program. "By recognizing schools at the end of season, we hope this encourages schools to celebrate those programs who show exemplary sportsmanship."
